

Vancouver's Ship for Beacon Hill?

Full-size replica of famed ship Discovery in which Capt. George Vancouver made early exploration of Canada's West Coast may be erected in Beacon Hill Park. Members of Thermopylae Club Wednesday night decided to back project "to the hilt," hope to get support from local organizations such as Chamber of Commerce. Project was suggested by Capt. William Gregory, member of the ship-lover's club. Reproduction of painting shown here is in Provincial Archives, which also has original "draught" plans of the hull of Discovery.

$200 Million DEW Line Job Split 3 Ways

B.C. Firm Among Contractors

OTTAWA (CP)—Three Canadian companies will carry out a major share of developing the $200,000,000 aircraft-warning Arctic radar fence to be paid for by the United States. The U.S. management contractor, Western Electric Co., has awarded DEW line (Distant Early Warning) contracts to: The Foundation Co. of Canada, Montreal; the Northern Construction Co., Vancouver; and Spartan Air Services Ltd., Ottawa.

The Spartan company will do a three-month aerial survey of the Arctic area where the radar chain will be located. The Foundation company will handle construction of the eastern half of the line and Northern Construction the western half.

Informants said most of the instruments to go into the radar line will be produced by U.S. companies, but other Canadian companies are likely to share in the big project.

TWO-YEAR JOB

The string of Arctic radar stations is expected to be completed in about two years.

About the same time as work proceeds in the Far North, construction also will be under way in developing the all-Canadian Mid-Canada line, at about the 55th parallel. This radar line, expected to cost about $150,000,000, will be paid for by Canada.

The DEW line and the Mid-Canada will be co-ordinated with the already established Pinetree network near the Canada-U.S. border to provide Canada with a large-scale warning system to raise an alarm in the event of enemy air attack from the north.

ALCAN TO BUILD NEW SMELTER AT KITIMAT

MONTREAL (CP)—The Aluminum Company of Canada said today a newly-formed subsidiary, Saguenay-Kitimat Company, is being awarded a construction contract for an additional smelter at Kitimat, B.C.

Construction is scheduled to start this month and the smelter is planned to start operating early next year, a statement said.

Vet Turns in $10 Million 'Radium' Vial

Provost Corporal's Souvenir Sends Geiger Counter Crazy

PORT ARTHUR, Ont. (CP)—A two-ounce vial of highly-radioactive powder has set police investigating the strange story of a former army provost corporal who says it was taken from the laboratory of a group of German scientists early in 1944.

It is believed the powder might be radium, which could be worth about $10,000,000 an official said.

The vial was turned over to Ontario provincial police about three weeks ago by Angus MacDonald of Beardmore. It was placed in the thickly-leaded radium vault of the General Hospital.

Another suggestion was that the vial, about three-quarters full, might contain uranium. George E. Pye, resident provincial geologist, said if it is uranium, it will be worth considerably less than a similar quantity of radium.

MacDonald said in an interview he and a member of the Dutch underground took the vial from a German laboratory shortly after the battle of Arnhem in 1944. He said the German scientists were trying to produce fissionable material from heavy water.

SENT COUNTER 'CRAZY'

MacDonald said he did not know the substance was radioactive until shortly before he took it to OPP constable Jack Webb who tested it with a geiger counter. He said the vial sent the counter "crazy."

It was expected the package would be taken to the atomic research centre at Chalk River for analysis.

"I hope nothing is going to happen to me," said MacDonald, who is prospecting in the Beardmore area, 120 miles northeast of here.

"I showed good faith by turning it over to police after I found it was radioactive."

MacDonald said the member of the underground seemed to find him more acceptable because he spoke French. MacDonald was brought up in Quebec province.

SAID ALL IN GERMANY

"I figured this stuff was valuable and I remembered him saying it was the whole supply in all of Germany and that if I didn't take one of the vials, the underground would get all of it."

"In my mind was that I might make some money out of it, but what it was I didn't know and I wasn't told."

He said the vial was in a cardboard box lined with lead-like substance and marked with the figure 1 over an oblique line and beneath it another figure 1 and the letter R.

GAVE HIM HEADACHE

He said he had not often handled the vial out of the case.

"I was afraid of the stuff ... after I removed the cork once and got a terrific headache."

An RCMP spokesman at Ottawa said MacDonald will receive a thorough examination for radioactive burns or some deterioration.

MacDonald said the vial lay for years in a cabinet at his mother's home while he prospected. He took it to Beardmore in October.

2,000 Armed Police Surround Slum Area

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UP)—Armed opposition was expected momentarily as 2,000 armed police today pressed relentlessly ahead with mass-removal of 60,000 natives from Johannesburg's Negro slum, Sophiatown.

The unprecedented forced evacuation to the new government community of Meadowlands, 212 miles away, is a key part of the Boer government's policy of apartheid—total racial segregation.

REPORT ARMS HIDDEN

Two thousand policemen armed with machine-guns began the evacuation Thursday, two days before the announced date. They ordered 150 families to move immediately. Only 110 complied. The rest vanished in the night, led by a hooded man. Minister of Justice C. F. Swart told parliament today the decision to speed the transfer was based on police reports that machine-guns and explosives are hidden in the native quarter.

The threatened armed opposition also was behind the government's decision to ban all public gatherings for 20 days.

Other families packed up their furniture and moved into the Sophiatown Mission directed by Father Trevor Middleton and said they did not wish to move to Meadowlands. There was no immediate official reaction to this move but police warned the English-born minister to "keep moving" when he walked among the native families.

Justice Minister Swart disclosed the "brewing trouble" in answer to questions from opposition leader J. G. N. Strauss in parliament today.

HOMES DEMOLISHED

The removal of the 100 families was carried out without incident, Swart said. The families climbed into 75 government trucks with their coal stoves, kitchen utensils and other household belongings and moved off. Some natives treated the whole thing as a holiday excursion, he said.

Government demolition crews sprayed the natives homes with cyanide and then demolished them or smashed the roofs to make them uninhabitable.

The initial move was restricted to shanty dwellers who either pay small rent or live as squatters. The movement of property owners set for later may not go off as easily. The natives will be paid for confiscated homes but cannot buy property at Meadowlands.

Unopposed Withdrawal Moves Fast

TAIPEI (UP)—Nationalist Chinese troops poured into Formosa today from the abandoned and demilitarized Tachen Islands at a clip that promised an end to the touchy, U.S.-protected operation by tomorrow or Saturday. Red China has not interfered.

One U.S. transport and three Chinese LSTs arrived at Keelung today, bringing the first troops from Tachen itself. Three more U.S. transports were due tonight.

The more dangerous redeployment of the troops to Quemoy, Matsu and Nanchi Islands may begin at the week-end.

That operation, which presumably will be carried out by the Nationalists alone, will require transports to move to within a few thousand yards of the heavily defended Red-held mainland.

Navy sources said 13,947 civilians were evacuated from the Tachens. Two refugees died aboard ship, victims of earlier Communist gunfire. Two births were reported, one each aboard the U.S. transport Bexar and an American destroyer.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The AFL's executive council gave its expected unanimous approval today to the proposed AFL-CIO merger agreement.

U.K. PAPER SOLE APPLAUDER

West Silent on Soviet Proposal For Inter-Parliamentary Visits

LONDON (CP)—The Star says the Russian proposal for interparliamentary discussions is "a splendid idea."

The Liberal newspaper comments on a resolution passed in Moscow by the Supreme Soviet suggesting exchanges of parliamentary delegations, with speeches by members of one parliament in the parliaments of other countries.

"Here is the Supreme Soviet officially calling for a worldwide exchange of MPs to bring a quiet life."

"Despite the groans of those who criticized Mr. Attlee's (former Labor premier Clement Attlee) Russian journey ... we think this is a splendid idea ..."

"The Supreme Soviet will sincerely welcome any steps by parliaments of other countries aimed at consolidating peace," says the declaration. The West must find out whether they mean it."

Other British newspapers have not commented on the Russian proposal.

WASHINGTON SILENT

In Washington, state department officials indicated it was too early for comment on the Soviet idea since nothing official on the proposal had been received there. They said they knew nothing beyond the reports carried by Moscow radio. Members of western parliaments frequently visit the Soviet Union, but there is no evidence that they ever have been invited to address the Supreme Soviet. Nor have any Soviet lawmakers appeared on the floor of any western parliament.

Parliamentarians from western countries have visited Russia on a number of occasions.

Last August Attlee took a party of Laborites across the Soviet Union to Red China. They had a top-level reception, including two dinner meetings with Georgi Malenkov, who then was premier.

Direct Federal Aid Plan for Education Killed in Debate

(From CP and BUP Dispatches)

Direct federal assistance to help equalize educational opportunities across the country is considered impractical by the government.

Citizenship Minister Pickersgill said Wednesday such aid to the provinces would encroach on their exclusive rights over education.

R. R. Knight (CCF-Saskatoon) argued that it would not. He was supported by A. J. Brooks (PC-Royal), Fred Shaw (SC-Red Deer), John Blackmore (SC-Lethbridge) and Fred Zaplithny (CCF-Dauphin). All except the latter have been school teachers or inspectors.

The views were expressed as the Commons debated Mr. Knight's resolution for "financial assistance to the various provinces for the expansion and equalization of education."

Huge Loss If Tax Deal Ditched

The government said Wednesday the federal treasury would lose an estimated $127,600,000 annually if all other provinces ditched the federal-provincial tax rental agreements and followed Quebec's lead in imposing a provincial income tax.

The theoretical figure was based on a 10 per cent reduction in federal income tax in all 10 provinces.

The information was contained in a written answer to a question by Hazen Argue (CCF, Assiniboia).

The answer also revealed that, on the basis of the collections of personal income taxes in 1953-54, the last year for which statistics were available, a 10 per cent reduction in the federal tax would lead to these federal revenue losses: Newfoundland, $1,200,000; Prince Edward Island, $200,000; Nova Scotia, $2,100,000; New Brunswick, $1,900,000; Ontario, $62,300,000; Manitoba, $6,000,000; Saskatchewan, $4,700,000; Alberta, $8,100,000; British Columbia, $12,700,000.

The losses would occur if these provinces, instead of adhering to the tax rental agreements, decided to make an arrangement with Ottawa similar to that offered Quebec recently by Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent.

The transport department says technical difficulties make it impossible to alert all RCAF trainer aircraft in Moose Jaw, Sask., area to approaching Trans-Canada Air Lines planes.

A return tabled Wednesday by Transport Minister Marler for Ross Thatcher (CCF-Moose Jaw-Lake Centre) also said TCA planes approaching Moose Jaw on regular or delayed flights do not notify the RCAF control tower at the Moose Jaw airport.

The return did not explain the technical difficulties. However, it said they do not apply to aircraft intending to land at Moose Jaw which are in contact with the air force control tower.

The government is considering representations by toy manufacturers that foreign toys sold in Canada carry markings showing their country of origin. Revenue Minister McCann said Wednesday.

However, he said it is a complicated matter because of the extensive variety of toys imported. If such a regulation were enforced, foreign manufacturers would find it impossible to ship some varieties of toys to Canada. The matter was raised by Owen C. Trainor (PC-Winnipeg South).

Suggestions by civil servants of ways to improve efficiency in government departments have brought estimated savings of $71,900 in the last two years.

In a return tabled Wednesday by Ross Thatcher (CCF-Moose Jaw-Lake Centre) the government said 5,800 employee proposals have been received since the civil service commission adopted a "suggestion award plan" in November, 1952. Of this number, 243 were implemented and an unspecified number still are being investigated.

Russians Are Developing A-Powered Car

Will Run for Weeks Without Refuelling

BERLIN (UP)—An east German newspaper said today the Soviet Union is developing an atomic automobile that can drive for weeks without refuelling.

The only hitch, the newspaper said, is that they haven't found a way yet to protect the persons riding in the car from the deadly gamma rays and neutrons constantly emitted by its uranium reactor.

The east zone paper gave these details:

"The main part of the atomic car is its atomic engine. Otherwise the automobile is constructed in a normal way.

"In a glimmering explosion, during the transformation of uranium or plutonium, immense quantities of heat come into being. This heat is used to melt a metal heat conductor, such as lead.

"The melted lead is kept in constant rotation and heats water. The water turns into steam and drives a small turbine, similar in principle to a steam turbine in a power plant.

"The turbine drives the axles, thus replacing the usual gasoline engine."

Once a final solution is found for protecting people from the deadly atomic rays, new ways will be open to Soviet science for the peaceful use of atom energy," the newspaper said.

Government Needed On Gunderson Move

Appointment of former Social Credit finance minister Elmer Gunderson to the directorate of the Canadian Bank of Commerce aroused snickers and raised eyebrows in the Legislature Wednesday.

A CCF MLA, Robert Strachan, needed the government benches on Mr. Gunderson's appointment, and said the defeated minister is "now in the camp of the enemy—the bankers."

Mr. Gunderson's appointment as a director of the bank was announced Tuesday, in advertisements in B.C. newspapers. The notices identify him as a vice-president of the government-owned PGE, and a member of the toll highways and bridges authority.

"Here is your skeleton in the closet," said Mr. Strachan.

"It might only be coincidence that it happens to be the bank with which the provincial government deals," he said, "but I hardly think so. This was no mere coincidence."

Opposition members laughed when the Cowichan-Newcastle MLA reminded "all of you orthodox Socreds" that their party advocates wrestling control of credit and currency from the banks.

He said all monetary transactions of the government were handled through the Bank of Commerce. Mr. Gunderson is the government's "economic advisor" on federal-provincial taxation matters.

Admits Shooting Boy, 4, Dumping Body, Says RCMP

VANCOUVER (BUP)—RCMP fish camp, Zorn told an Assize Court manslaughter trial here. Wednesday that Thomas Blainey, 37, Powell River, B.C., admitted he got drunk and accidentally shot his four-year-old nephew, Ernie, and put the body in a sack and dumped it into the sea at Okeover Arm, near Powell River, Oct. 27.

"He said he made a gallon of home brew, and kept it under his bed in the shack in which he and his mother lived at the fish camp," Zorn told an Assize Court manslaughter trial here. Wednesday that Thomas Blainey, 37, Powell River, B.C., admitted he got drunk and accidentally shot his four-year-old nephew, Ernie, and put the body in a sack and dumped it into the sea at Okeover Arm, near Powell River, Oct. 27.

"Blainey said he put the body in a sack, weighted it with rocks, put it in his canoe and paddled to the far shore with it," Zorn said.

Despite an intensive search by navy frogmen, the boy's body was never found.

Just What You'd Expect
In the Press Gallery

By TONY DICKASON

They don't like to talk other—but they write a lot. You've read 'em or heard 'em, though the names probably don't mean very much. They are the members of the Legislative Press Gallery, the hardworking and fanatically conscientious Joes who turn out what has happened in the legislature so it makes sense. This you read in your newspapers and hear via radio. It is no easy chore to make sense out of a three-hour speech which starts with a finance formula, touches on Doughbors and winds up with a castigation of butter very much—except to each clams. A slight cynicism is therefore overlooked by the people who run the newspapers and radio stations when their correspondents exhibit same. It exhibits itself in such forms as "of course any idiot knows that the five per cent levy applies only to the existing differential, not to the preconceived remarks by the premier on the subject. Everything has changed. How have you sufficient wit to get across the street without realizing this?" Editors sometimes give a bewildered nod.

They Come in All Varieties

This year there are 12 members in the legislative press gallery. Some are veterans—who wear homburgs and carry umbrellas—neatly folded—and others are new arrivals who wear no hats at all. Regardless, all do a competent job or the money-conscious news chains and syndicates for which they chore would out 'em fast. This is a day-by-day occupation. If you were bright yesterday, and dull today, take great care, sir, not to be dull tomorrow also. Writing and events move swiftly. There's no room for the laggard. The press-gallery is a dishevelled place. Paper piles desks. Nobody has time to take up housekeeping, and the members don't care; they're too busy to bother with the picaune.

Still Smiling After 31 Years of It

The Times' Bruce Hutchison, top dog now in many writing spheres, is there also in a 1924 photo. As then, he's still grinning about things. Here are a few of the others who make up the press gallery:

There's the newsman Gordon McCallum, with 30 years' experience in the field of writing... "everying from marriages to murders." He's been with the Province 10 years, and 25 years with the Southam chain. He's a likeable greying type who has a mind as young as yesterday. Gordie eloped 30 years ago, and got his marriage license in the same buildings he's covering today.

He's recently over here for his paper. Says: "To find a place to live, thought it would take my wife days. Took her 24 hours."

Then there's Bert Cannings, ex-CAAF public relations type, ex-newspaperman and in radio since 1945. He's the guy who as news director of Vancouver station CKWX has turned out a couple of programs which have made radio history: a taped show called "Why Do They Do It," dealing with traffic violators and a gutsy-traumatic thing called "They Walk by Night," which puts such people as dope addicts into the public eye.

Tom Merriman, ex-gallery man and many years with the Times and therefore probably still holds the good thought for James K. Nesbitt, a youngster in his day, who writes for almost everything including the Sun. Jimmy, as popularly known, also from the times, has been in the gallery for years and "started off filling paste pots... the only way to do it." He considers present Premier Bennett as "the most colorful since Patullo."

Most of the legislative information goes across the country through Canadian Press. This is an adjective-less but competent service which Steve Scott, 27, handles from here. He's an intense young man with a shock of black hair, as fast in his interpretation of a government bill as a psychologist interprets alcoholism.

From the Vancouver Herald comes Ken Drury, with news papers, so long "I don't like

Mental Hospital Near Victoria Being Planned

1,500-Bed Structure May Cost $7,000,000

Preliminary planning is underway for construction of a 1,500-bed mental hospital near Victoria, Provincial Secretary Wesley Black announced Wednesday.

Mr. Black told the Legislature property for the proposed institution is available, and planning is underway. It was learned the institution will probably be started in about five years.

Estimated cost of the huge mental health hospital is about $7,000,000.

Mr. Black said: "It is felt the institution at Essondale has been developed to its maximum for efficient operation."

"For some time it has been felt that the citizens of Vancouver Island and adjacent islands should have (mental) hospital facilities closer to their place of residence."

10-YEAR PROJECT

Government officials said later the proposed institution would be developed, as the need arises, over a 10-year period. It would replace the existing Colquitz Mental Home, which is a high-security unit at which little active treatment is carried out.

Mr. Black also revealed tenders will be called in a matter of weeks for a new 300-bed unit for the aged mentally ill. This institution will be located near Essondale, and will cost about $1,700,000, the minister said.

Taylor, Bell, Globe & Mail Top Bidders?

TORONTO (BUP)—Bidding on the Globe and Mail closed today and more than a dozen groups were reported eager to pay at least $5,000,000 to control Toronto's only morning newspaper. About $7,000,000 was believed necessary to buy the paper.

The deadline for offers was 3 p.m. but the Chartered Trust Company executors of the George McCullagh and William H. Wright estates, said a decision might not be announced for a week.

Millionaire industrialist E. P. Taylor was conceded the best chance of winning the paper with the 111-year tradition that grew up with Canada.

Taylor, who reportedly was backed by Col. W. Eric Phillips and other executives of his giant Argus corporation, broke off a vacation in the Bahamas to discuss the deal with associates in Montreal.

Taylor had to abandon two previous publishing ventures, the New World Magazine and the National Home Monthly, when they failed to profit. He and another horse-racing millionaire, Max Bell of Calgary, were considered the most likely purchasers in a field of blue bloods and dark horses.

Conservative members of Commons were authorized by the cabinet to vote as they please when the ballot is taken late today.

The House of Commons was believed likely to kill the Laborite plan this time, although the vote may be close.

Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill's Conservative government is opposed to the "experiment."

The move was the second attempt in seven years to abolish the death penalty in Britain. The House of Lords killed a similar attempt in 1948.

PUBLISHER SENTENCED

NEW YORK AP)—The publisher of Harvey Matusow's forthcoming book "False Witness" was sentenced to six months for contempt of court Wednesday. He was charged with refusing to give certain records about the book to a grand jury.

Matusow's book is reported to tell how he testified falsely in a number of cases against people accused of Communist connections, including the trial of 13 second-string Communist leaders.

Matusow has said he gave false testimony at that trial at the suggestion of Roy Cohn, then an assistant U.S. attorney and later counsel to a Senate sub-committee headed by Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep. Wis.). Cohn has denied the charge.

Medical, Dental Exemption From Assessment Tax Scored

VANCOUVER (BUP)—Real estate agent James Morrow said Wednesday that the provincial government's Assessment Equalization Act taxed the small grocery store owner on his showcase and deep freeze unit, while doctors, dentists and professional men were not affected.

Morrow told the court of revision that thousands of dollars worth of equipment in city medical buildings were untouched by the tax. He said the grocery store equipment was being assessed, while jewelry stores and druggists paid nothing on their showcases and taxable machinery.

City assessor Walter Snow-Morrow was appealing more than $30,000 in assessments on three city properties.

Avoiding the Issue

PARLIAMENT HAS SPENT A day discussing Mr. John Diefenbaker's motion for a Canadian Bill of Rights, has adjourned debate after hearing Justice Minister Garson's opposition to the bill, and left the issue presumably to languish for the rest of this session.

The attitude of the Government is unfortunate. Mr. Garson's argument will not convince those people who see the need for such a bill more clearly in the light of comparatively recent events.

Mr. Diefenbaker's case appeared to centre on the Blair Fraser libel action. That, of course, is important—particularly important to the free flow of information. But reports of proceedings in the House of Commons ignored what is an even more flagrant violation of rights.

No mention was made of Mr. Duplessis' Quebec Freedom of Worship Act—which repudiates in vital particulars the title given to it.

Mr. Garson is correct in stating "You don't make a new heaven on earth by passing a Bill of Rights." He seems less convincing when he argues that any infringement of human rights or freedoms could be corrected by a simple statute passed by Parliament or the provincial legislatures.

Mr. Duplessis' act was passed by a legislature. It contradicts the assumption that Parliament and Parliament alone can legislate on basic civil liberties, that no province can infringe them and that, therefore, they are secure.

Harsh Facts on Wool

AFTER EXTENSIVE STUDIES, the tariff board has told Canada's wool industry some of the unpleasant facts of life.

The investigating body has presented a 20,000-word report to Finance Minister Harris. In it the board rejects the views of the Canadian industry that the serious condition in which some segments find themselves is the result of low tariffs on competing imports from Britain. Rather, it explains, the market has shrunk because customers are turning, or have turned, to other fabrics.

This is not a new development in the wool industry. The effects of substitutes were noticed painfully by Australia some years ago. The replacement of wool by synthetics was particularly evident in carpet and rug manufacture.

Whether or not wool interests priced themselves out of the market, whether or not wartime scientific development produced new fabrics to overcome shortages in more conventional supplies, and created a trend,

Mr. Duplessis, by his legislation, has assumed that the citizen's most important rights are under provincial jurisdiction. He proposes to restrict them drastically in the fields of free speech, free assembly and free publication.

Unless Parliament takes action to reject the Quebec premier's theories and remove any doubts over the jurisdiction in the realm of citizens' rights, the Freedom of Worship Act remains a threat not only to the people of Quebec. In effect it establishes a pattern which could permit a different citizenship for each province in the country—10 sets of citizens whose rights could be determined by the provincial government immediately over them.

Mr. Diefenbaker has listed seven clauses for a proposed bill of rights. Perhaps such codification is not necessary.

What is needed, nevertheless, is a simple declaration by Parliament that it alone can legislate in this field.

As has been pointed out in these columns at other times, even if certain rights are written into the constitution, the constitution can be changed by Parliament. However, apart from emergency powers required in wartime, no Parliament is likely to infringe civil rights. Mr. Duplessis shows no such restraint. The very fact that he has been able to write into Quebec legislation his Freedom of Worship Act is proof itself of the need for Parliament to assert its supremacy in this field.

or whether or not the buyer finds better value in substitutes, the result is obvious. People are not buying wool to the extent they once did.

Perhaps that cloth has moved toward the luxury class. Certainly there will always be a market, though it may be small, for fine quality wools. But in that field competition is bound to be keen. Britain depends for important dollars on the wools it can export. Those dollars are needed to buy commodities which Canada can produce more efficiently than Britain.

Hence the industry in this country is caught between two forces—the consumer shift to substitutes and the economic policy which calls for reception of British goods here so we can sell our goods to Britain.

If the Canadian industry, by improved technical developments, can produce wool at a price which makes it attractive to the domestic purchaser, well and good. If it cannot, then no present hope for a brighter future can be offered it.

Butter and the Ghee-Whizzes

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE Monitor, with a rueful admission that it is joking on a subject that is no laughing matter, offers a solution to the American butter surplus problem.

It is ghee, of the Hindu gh. That means rancid butter which people in some parts of the world consider a delicacy.

The Monitor says that members of the U.S. Department of Agriculture have come up with a scheme whereby the huge butter stockpile can be converted into ghee and sold to people who can't seem to get enough of it.

By this means undesired trade with Russia will be avoided and the embarrassing surplus can be eliminated. In fact, says the American newspaper, a whole new industry in ghee-making could be established.

Were it not for one fact, Canada might find in this development a way out of its butter dilemma. Unfortunately the single fact cannot be overcome. Ghee sells for an amount that would entail a 50-cent loss per pound at American butter prices.

Still, the idea indicates a commendable streak of imagination among the boys in U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Benson's department. When it comes to butter surpluses, they're whizz kids—ghee-whizz kids, that is.

Work and Juve nile Delinquency

RICHARD CLENDENEN, executive director, and Herbert W. Beaser, chief counsel of the United States Senate judiciary subcommittee to investigate juvenile delinquency, have completed their Saturday Evening Post series "The Shame of America" with a number of conclusions and recommendations.

One phase of the latter is of particular interest to Victoria because of studies conducted here on employment opportunities for children without high school education or specialized training.

The American writers say: "It is becoming more and more apparent that, among older boys and girls, inability to secure jobs is a highly important factor in the growth of delinquency. Most of them are untrained. Employers seldom welcome boys who will soon be eligible for military service."

COMPULSORY SCHOOL ATTENDANCE

"The child-labor and compulsory education laws in this country (the United States) are a great achievement, but there are times when their rigid application is unfortunate and may contribute to delinquency. Experience shows that certain boys and girls play truant and become delinquents, because of a definitely limited ability to benefit from traditional school programs. As pointed out to the subcommittee by the National Federation of Settlements and Neighborhood Centers, many such youngsters would be better off and in less danger of getting into trouble if school authorities were given the legal right—and exercised it—to permit them to spend part of the school day at work.

JOB DIFFICULTIES

"This, of course, is not a simple matter. Finding useful jobs for children under 16 is extremely difficult because opportunities are limited and often undesirable. Even older children who may legally quit school have increasing difficulty in job hunting and are likely to spend their time loafing around the corner store looking for some way to get a little cash. It is important to remember that not all children steal just because they hate their mothers. Some steal because they need or want money."

"Any solution of this increasingly important problem obviously will require the opening up of more work opportunities specifically for teenagers. There are in private industry a substantial number of jobs that could be reserved for these youngsters if both management and labor co-operated on working out the problem. In addition, the Federation of Settlements and Neighborhood Centers urged that 'steps be taken on all levels of government to provide training and work experience programs for unemployed youth that will tide them over until they can take their places as productive workers in our economy.'"

At one Victoria school special arrangements are made for children who, as the U.S. writers phrase it, have "a definitely limited ability to benefit from traditional school programs." These are not children who require special care outside the school system, but who, for varying reasons, gain little advantage from higher education—that is, education at the high school level.

To help them to equip themselves for work, the school provides a terminal course in which they are given as thorough a knowledge as they can assimilate of the simpler, basic subjects, reading, writing and arithmetic. They are then allowed to leave school and seek work. By this procedure they escape the injurious effects of being transferred to higher grades where the work is beyond them.

BIG QUESTION

When the course was introduced, school authorities were troubled by one big question: Would local employers have jobs for these children?

Hence the survey and the moderately satisfying conditions it revealed. Inquiries among employers showed there were openings for this type of boy or girl almost equivalent to the number leaving classes after terminal courses below high school each year.

This situation is not, of course, a complete protection against juvenile delinquency. It is encouraging, on the other hand, to note that conditions in Greater Victoria do meet one of the points raised by the investigation into juvenile delinquency in the United States.

Backing the Bull Market

By BRUCE HUTCHISON From New York

WALL STREET'S big bull market is not the result of speculative fever, as in 1929. It reflects a sober and expert judgment of the American economy in 1955. And in the last year that judgment has been completely reversed.

At this time in 1954 Wall Street was suffering from acute jitters. Business had experienced a narrow but sudden and incalculable drop. True enough, the fledgling Eisenhower government promised to arrest this decline but Wall Street seldom trusts governments. Would 1954 or 1955 produce the long-awaited postwar depression?

All those fears have passed. Canadian government officials, exploring the prospects here, have found the leaders of American finance more confident than at any time within memory.

THERE IS GOOD reason for that confidence, barring anything short of a major war. At the moment American business actually is producing and selling more goods than in the first months of 1953, the greatest boom year ever. Even if this pace should slacken in the last half of the year, 1955 should be definitely better than 1954 and, in total production, as good as 1953.

These are more than the assumptions of stock brokers. They are the premises on which the American and Canadian Governments will budget in the next fiscal year.

Apart from the danger of war in the Pacific, which few Americans seem to expect, only one cloud hangs over the economic horizon. It is a larger cloud than most Canadians realize.

IN THE AUTOMOBILE industry—the largest single industry in the world—the labor unions are fighting for a guaranteed annual wage. The owners are determined to reject this demand on the ground that it is unsound in principle and impossible in practice.

When the present wage contracts lapse in May the whole industry, from the great manufacturing centres to the small towns where the automobile parts are made, may be closed by a strike.

Meanwhile the automobile companies are pushing production at a maximum rate and storing up cars against a threatened famine. This speed-up is a major factor in the current business recovery but it would disappear, at least temporarily, in the event of a strike.

Even if the automobile industry is closed for a time, with serious effects on all supplying industries, Wall Street expects this to be a great business year. The change in judgment goes deeper than the immediate prospects, however. American finance has fundamentally altered its attitude to government.

UNTIL THE REPUBLICAN party took office in 1952, Wall Street, still suffering from nostalgia, generally supposed or hoped that somehow the new fiscal system inaugurated by the Roosevelt New Deal could be repealed and the good old days revived. That notion, always historically impossible, has been abandoned.

The private enterprises who used to manage the financial system know now that the state is managing it through the national treasury, the Federal Reserve Board and all the gigantic engines of economic power first installed by Woodrow Wilson but put into full operation only with the arrival of Wilson's pupil, Roosevelt. And the invisible hand on the control lever is the hand of the late Lord Keynes.

In short, the Keynesian theory that the state can and must maintain general prosperity by the skilful manipulation of the money system is no longer a theory but the operating principle of American society.

THAT COULD NOT be said with full assurance until a Republican administration succeeded the Democrats. For the Republicans might try to liquidate the Keynesian experiment by degrees or sabotage it quietly in its day-to-day operations.

Nothing of that sort has occurred. The Eisenhower Government, inheriting the fiscal machine of its predecessor, is not only maintaining it but improving and strengthening it. A Republican administration is just as determined as Truman or Roosevelt to equate the money supply with the output of goods and thus to make sure that the American people can purchase their gigantic production.

This is a process complex and delicate beyond the grasp of the layman since it involves governmental expenditure, taxes, interest rates and the expansion or contraction of credit in the private banking system. But in the opinion of Wall Street anyway the Eisenhower Government is managing that process much more skilfully than its predecessor.

THE PROOF of this skill, as private financiers see it, is supplied by the experience of the last year. Economic events have turned out exactly as Mr. Arthur Burns, the chairman of the President's council of economic advisers, predicted.

At this point in 1954, while business worried and politicians screamed for massive fiscal action to prevent a deepening slump, Mr. Burns stood firm in his belief that recovery already was under way. If his assumptions proved wrong he was ready, by March, to adopt drastic Keynesian remedies, all of which were blueprinted in advance for instant use. They were not needed.

The Canadian Government followed the same economic strategy, refusing to be stampeded into inflationary policies. But if the American Government's assumptions had proved wrong, if the American economy had failed to recover, nothing could have saved Canada from the backwash of its big neighbor's falling business.

THE YEAR'S RECORD not only proved Mr. Burns right but created a new confidence in government among the American businessmen.

They never fully trusted the Democratic administrations, even in the peak of the postwar boom. They trust a Republican administration using the same methods. They believe, rightly or wrongly, that if the Democratic party had remained in office it would have suffered a panic last year, invoked inflationary measures prematurely and piled up trouble for the future.

Whatever one may think of the wisdom of private American finance in such judgments, the undoubted fact is that a new confidence in government is itself a large factor in the current recovery.

Having accepted the Keynesian revolution at last and watched a Republican administration operate it, so far successfully, business is increasingly willing to risk its money on the results, to invest heavily and thus to stimulate the whole economy, as Mr. Burns expected. Hence, among other things, the bull market.

May I congratulate your paper upon publishing a Theatre Guide for school children.

BY THEIR VOTES

On February 7, Alderman M. Mooney called personally to assure me there is really no secrecy at city hall. Everybody knows it never rains at all in Victoria. (I was absent.)

The alderman expressed a wish to explain away his vote for secrecy in your columns. If he can, please let him do so without further delay.

The city hall clock recently went secret for about two days and refused even to tell the public the time. Yes, indeed, secrecy is a bad omen. (The fire department made a gallant attempt to end clock secrecy.)

When a thing is wrong (like the secrecy by-law), no amount of explaining can make it right. By their votes ye shall know them.

Readers can vote for Aldermen Macmillan and Smith with confidence—because they did vote against all forms of petty secrecy at city hall.

I wonder if the city hall clock has paid poll tax or can it speak without let or hindrance of any sort?

NO STONE TABLETS

The almost sublime self assurance with which Premier Bennett pronounces the fiscal fate of every municipality in the province—without hearings, without evidence and without previous experience in a most complex issue, indicates an abuse of power. At least he had the grace to refrain from chiselling his formula on tablets of stone.

'What Makes You Think I Have a Split Personality?'

CCF Strong for Coldwell

BY VICTOR J. MACKIE, From Ottawa

MEMBERS of the CCF parliamentary group are solidly behind M. J. Coldwell and want him to remain as their leader, despite the division that developed over the question of German re-armament.

But the socialist M.P.'s are concerned over the state of their leader's health. Now 66 years of age Mr. Coldwell has carried a heavy burden since he began guiding the party in the Commons 15 years ago. The difficult task has taken its toll and his health has not been good during recent months. At this stage however, there is no thought of Mr. Coldwell's retiring from the leadership. He has declared his readiness to carry on so long as his health permits.

QUEBEC PROBLEM

Saskatchewan's premier T. C. Douglas could not have unleashed his attack on the Federal Government and Quebec over the new tax formula, at a worse time in so far as the national executive of the CCF party was concerned. Led by its central chairman a flying squad of trouble-shooters had hurried to Montreal to make peace with the French-Canadian leaders of the CCF. The Quebecers were aroused over the number of speeches made in parliament by western CCFers critical of Quebec or French Canadians. It was not so much the content of the speeches, explained the French CCF supporters, it was the pattern which appeared to be a deliberate "alienate Quebec" design. Not so, soothed smooth-talking David Lewis and company. The Quebec group appeared mollified and peace was restored to the party when press reports of Premier Douglas' attack were carried in eastern Canadian newspapers, undoing what David had done.

UNSETTLED QUESTIONS

A number of important policy questions awaited the return of Prime Minister St. Laurent from the London Commonwealth conference. Among the matters in abeyance are: A decision whether the Federal Cabinet should agree to the principle of providing financial aid for the Trans-Canada Pipe Lines project; amount of salary increases for judges to be approved by Parliament; decision whether Parliament should be asked to establish the proposed Canada Arts Council this session on a modest scale; appointments to the Senate to fill 21 vacancies now in the Upper House and a decision whether Parliament will be asked to vote funds to allow construction to start on the long delayed South Saskatchewan River dam.

BRAIN FOOD

Fisheries Minister James Sinclair has made it a point since he took over the portfolio to promote the consumption of fish among Canadians. Now he is concentrating on Members of Parliament. He has launched a subtle campaign by inviting groups of M.P.'s each week to the fisheries' department kitchens in the west block of the Parliament Buildings for seafood luncheons. They are proving popular even among prairie members who are not usually fish enthusiasts.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

The minister of citizenship and immigration answers to the name of Jack Pickersgill or more formally, Hon. J. W. Pickersgill. Recently at a meeting of the West Ottawa Liberal Association he found his full name spelled out on the speakers' list: John Whitney Pickersgill. He explained that his father, a staunch Conservative, tagged him with those names when he was born to commemorate the name of Ontario's first Conservative premier—Sir J. F. Whitney was premier of Ontario from 1905 to 1914. The present minister of immigration was born in 1905 just four months after Premier Whitney was elected. "My parents took their jubilation out on me. For years I have been trying to live it down," explained the Liberal cabinet minister.

HOLDING THE LINE

Having succeeded in cutting the government's main estimated expenditures by $153,500,000 Mr. Harris, the finance minister, has still another hurdle to clear. The supplementary estimates are brought down in the spring and always add considerably to the proposed federal outlays for the fiscal year. This spring will be no exception. Already four large items are on the agenda totaling more than $30,000,000. This is no meagre amount when it is realized that the supplementaries for all departments last year only totaled $42,000,000 odd. Items to be covered in the coming supplementaries included: Quebec taxation arrangement providing about $15,000,000 in refunds for 1954; higher veterans' allowances amounting to $10,000,000; greater municipal grants, up by nearly $3,000,000 over previous years and an increase in the transport department appropriations for railway grade crossing fund amounting to approximately $4,000,000.

RESUMED HEARINGS

This week the Royal Commission on Patents, Copyrights and Trade Marks resumed its sittings in Ottawa. Set up under the chairmanship of Chief Justice J. L. Tasley of Nova Scotia the commission has been inquiring initially into legislation which enables the Canadian electronics industry to bar the importation of foreign-made radio and television sets. There have been numerous submissions by representatives of the industry interested in maintaining the law as it now stands but few if any representations have been made for changes in the law to enable imported radios and television sets to be sold in Canada. This surprising lack of interest might be attributed in part to an ignorance of the implications of Canada's patent legislation as it is now applied.

STRONG AND SILENT

Don't assume that because the English are reluctant to express emotions they don't feel them. Isn't their silence, their very inarticulateness one of the sources of their strength? I think they're right not to put too high a premium on the mere word. They attach far more importance to those motives, those deep wells of feeling that mere words are powerless to reveal.

B.C. Match Play Golf Final Proposed

MINNIE GOT FIGURES CROSSED, SAYS LANE

CHICAGO (AP)—Frank Lane, Chicago White Sox general manager, read the letter from his star outfielder Minnie Minoso in Havana and gasped: "He's asking for a $20,000 raise, 'no more and no less.'" Minoso now is in his annual salary tug-of-war with Lane. He is reported to have received about $30,000 last year.

"I've written Minnie another letter after receiving his plea for a $20,000 raise," Lane said Wednesday. "I told him that when he dictated that letter he must have been trying to impress a beautiful stenographer. Either that or he happened to look out of a window and read the number of a passing car."

HABS BEATEN; RANGERS TIE HAWKS

Irvin Sharp, Leafs Sharper

Toronto 3, Montreal 1; Chicago 2, New York 2

(By Canadian Press)

Dick Irvin, pigeon lover, needer and hockey coach, warned that he had something up his sleeve. He did, but it didn't do much good.

The 62-year-old coach of Montreal Canadiens shook it out Wednesday night before Toronto Maple Leafs, 13,874 National Hockey League fans and Toronto coach King Clancy, the man who thought he was calling a bluff. Everybody, except Irvin, was startled.

Irvin pulled his surprise at Toronto by asking referee Frank Udvori to measure the blade of goaltender Harry Lumley's stick. Irvin said it was too wide. Clancy said he was screwy. Irvin was right.

Lumley got a penalty. Although Irvin wouldn't say so, his ace-in-the-hole evidently was aimed at unsettling Lumley and letting Canadiens sneak in with a victory. It didn't turn out that way. The teams were tied 1-1 at the time and Leafs went on to win 3-1.

On the game itself, Rudy Migay fired two goals to spark the third-place Leafs. Defense man Tim Horton scored the other goal on a 75-foot shot that bounced crazily in front of netminder Jacques Plante and whizzed into the cage.

Leftwinger Dickie Moore scored for Montreal.

It was one of two NHL engagements. In the other, Dean Prentice scored at 16:29 of the third period to give the fifth-place Rangers a 2-2 tie with the last-place Chicago Black Hawks at New York. Andy Bathgate scored the other Ranger goal. Red Sullivan tallied two for the Hawks.

CHALLENGES CLANCY

Irvin, who raises pigeons in his spare time, cried foul at the end of the first period with the score deadlocked and the teams heading for their dressing rooms. Irvin, who only Tuesday told Toronto newspapermen at a special dinner that he would have a scoop for them at the game, challenged Clancy to have Lumley's stick undergo the scrutiny of the referee.

Udvori's tape measure revealed that the blade was about four inches wide, more than the 3 1/2 specified in NHL rules. Lumley was given a minor penalty, served by Leaf rookie Brian Cullen.

How did Irvin know? Well, Lumley apparently broke a stick in Montreal during a Leaf-Canadiens game last Thursday and conjecture is that Irvin had it checked.

RCN Golf Association Plans Active Season

The RCN Golf Association has planned an active program for the 1955 season, starting with the first Inter-Ship Tournament at the Gorge Vale Golf Club Feb. 19. Six teams will compete for the George Cole Sports Trophy.

Other scheduled season's events will be: an open championship, a match play handicap tournament, the Corby-Wiser Cup medal competition, monthly inter-ship tournaments, inter-service matches against Army and RCAF, team matches against the USN (Bremerton, Wash.), HMC Dockyard civilian employees, and the Cowichan

Golf Club (Duncan), and Tri-services matches.

Tournaments and home matches of the association will be played at the Gorge Vale Golf Club.

Gutoski Gets Big Jump In Consols' Playdowns

(SPECIAL TO THE TIMES)

KAMLOOPS—Tony Gutoski's Victoria Curling Club rink was as slick as the ice surface here Wednesday in the first round draw of the round-robin MacDonald Brier curling championships.

Gutoski indicated his intentions in the B.C. championship by opening up with a five-ender and then coasting home to a lopsided 14-5 victory over the Evans rink of Smithers.

Bill Karjala of Nanaimo, kept his winning ways alive, scoring his seventh straight victory, an 11-8 win over Clarence Larson of Chilliwack in his first Consol match.

However, Gutoski was not so fortunate in the Grand Challenge "A" event of the Kamloops Brier as he was eliminated by the highly-rated Scotty Ross rink from Trail, 10-6. The Victoria rink is still in contention for the "B" championship.

Glen Walkey's Victoria rink scored a pair of victories in the early rounds of the "C" and "D" events, downing Price of Kamloops and Bowless of Kamloops.

Max Zabel of Victoria was eliminated from the "C" event by Jim McKinnon of Kamloops.

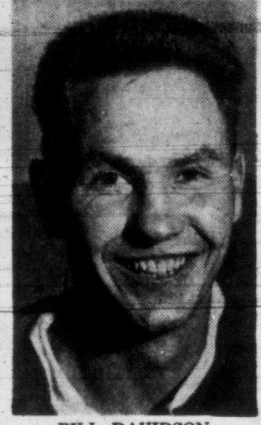

Cougars Match Flyers In Playoff Preview

Victoria 0, Edmonton 0

By BILL WALKER

MARCEL PELLETIER
... sixth shutout.

BILL DAVIDSON
... aids Cougar cause.

Victoria Cougars must figure to meet Edmonton Flyers in the Western Hockey League playoffs. At least they figure to be in the playoffs. And Wednesday night they gave the Flyers a taste of what to expect. The Flyers did the same in return.

It was at Memorial Arena and the stage was set for the battle of the goal-getting aces. On the home front was Andy Heberton, ace of the Cougar sniping staff, 37 goals to his credit. On the visiting rampart stood Bronco Horvath, league leader and tied with Heberton for most goals—37.

In the background were Edmonton's Glen Hall, Detroit bound and the best goalie in the league according to statistics, and Marcel Pelletier, the Cougar custodian who dislikes his role of heir pretender to the crown.

Sixty torrid minutes and no goals later, Heberton and Horvath were all but just a couple of other guys. Each club was singing the praises of Hall and Pelletier respectively.

It was the first scoreless league battle since Feb. 24, 1951, when Tacoma and Vancouver went the same route in a double shutout at Tacoma. Two league playoff games also went regulation time without a goal. New Westminster defeated Tacoma, 1-0, in overtime on March 25, 1951. Bob Koch doing the honors. While here at Victoria in the March 22, 1951 contest between Portland and the Cougars, Harold Hopper didn't score for the Eagles until 8:45 of the first overtime period.

Hall Busy, Pelletier Sharp

Of the two goalies, who assumed a more commanding role as the game progressed, Hall was the busiest and the more fortunate. But it was Pelletier who rose to the particular brilliance of the occasion when it was most needed.

Ray Hannigan of the Flyers got a clean break on the Cougar citadel as the third period Pelletier, with the help of a great check by Bill Davidson, was equal to the task. In the second period, too, it was Hannigan who got the next best Edmonton chance, shooting wide on a partial break-through. Jerry Melnyk, too, was through. Pelletier catching his shot in the fold of his chin.

Hall's moments for recollection as he heads east today to join the Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League, replacing Terry Sawchuk, were numerous enough to keep him pre-occupied on his trip.

He was slightly more than his record indicates in the first period as the Cougars carried the play. To this Alex Kuzma will bear witness more than any other Cougar. Kuzma had three straight whacks at the puck in about as many seconds at one stage and Hall somehow kept chesting the rubber back into play. He also made a great save from Heberton on a goal-mouth pass from Ed Dorohoy in the second, in addition to his other chores which included a blind spot of a screened shot by Pete Durham.

Dorohoy too had more than one opportunity; Marquess grazed the post from close in, Bill Bucyk did likewise, and so it went. Heberton did get one goal but it didn't count. He knocked the puck into the net with his hand. It was as obvious as the fact that this was the only way to beat Hall this evening.

Record Within Sight Now

For Pelletier, it was his sixth shutout of the season, one shy of the league record, but the leading mark for this campaign. It was also the second straight game in which Hall has blanked the Cougars, the Flyers taking a 3-0 decision from the Cougars in their last meeting at Edmonton. Hall has four shutouts.

The point gained gave the Cougars another leg up on their bid to overtake third-place Calgary Stampeders, whom they trail by three points. And if they are to meet Edmonton in the first round of the playoff series, they must overtake the Stamps.

In that regard the next step takes place at New Westminster tonight, the week's final outing being against Vancouver Canucks here Saturday.

Either contest will have to go some to measure up to the hard-checking, sometimes fugged battle. As it was the Cougars suffered the most loss of face. Billy Reay got clipped for a gash on the side of the head. Marquess had a couple of stitches put in his lip and Durham got cut open under the nose.

This was a playoff preview and it passed the test easily.

CLAIMS SLANDER AND LIBEL

Dick Files Writ Against Royal Owner

VANCOUVER (CP)—Kenny MacKenzie, co-owner of New Westminster Royals of the Western Hockey League, has been named defendant in a Supreme Court writ, in which Harry Dick, Vancouver Canucks defence man, claims unstated damages for slander and libel.

The writ was filed Monday and claims Dick was damaged by statements made by MacKenzie following an injury suffered by Jim Zarie, 22-year-old former Winnipeg Maroons player, in a game Jan. 18, Zarie, checked by Dick, suffered a knee injury which necessitated surgery.

TORONTO (CP)—A roster of 19 stars from 10 sports, ranging from swimmer Marilyn Bell to baseball player Al Rosen, was announced today for Ontario's $25-a-plate sports celebrity dinner in Toronto for crippled children.

The Ontario Sports Writers and Sportscasters Association, sponsors of the Feb. 17 dinner marking opening of the Canada-wide Easter seals campaign, reported that its lineup included the biggest array of baseball notables since the event was inaugurated in 1952.

Besides Rosen, Cleveland Indians third baseman and former American League batting champion, baseball will be represented by pitchers Robin Roberts of Philadelphia Phillies, Sal Maglie of New York Giants and Dazzy Vance, former Brooklyn Dodger.

All proceeds of the dinner, estimated at about $20,000, go to the Ontario Society for Crippled Children. From its first three dinners, the association gave the society $70,266.54 including two anonymous donations of $12,700 each.

Marilyn Bell will receive a plaque commemorating her selection by association members as Ontario's outstanding athlete of the year for her feat of swimming across Lake Ontario last September.

The sport celebrities to attend include Gerry James, Winnipeg Blue Bombers half chosen last year as Canada's outstanding homebrew player and Pat Fletcher of Saskatoon who won the 1953 Canadian open golf championship.

Bisons Near AHL Leaders; Hornets Lead

(By British United Press)

The third-place Buffalo Bisons, who erupted for six goals in the final period against the second-place Springfield Indians Wednesday night, moved to within three points of the Indians and five of the first-place Pittsburgh Hornets today in the American Hockey League race.

Led by Pete Babando and Lou Jankowski, each of whom scored two goals, and Ken Hayden, who scored a goal and three assists, the Bisons piled it on against the Indians for a 10-5 triumph.

While the Indians were losing, the Hornets hung a 5-1 loss on the last-place Providence Reds and moved into sole possession of the top rung. A pair of goals by Dunc Fisher enabled the fifth-place Hershey Bears to down the Cleveland Barons, 4-3, in other action.

Guy Rink Advances

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—A Kenora rink won the northwestern Ontario curling championship in a sudden-death final playoff Wednesday.

It was the second straight year that a Kenora quartette has won the regional event. The rink, skipped by Jimmy Guy, 38, now will meet the northern Ontario champions for the right to enter the Dominion curling championships.

Times Sponsors Island Event

By BILL WALKER, Sports Editor

A British Columbia Match Play Open golf championship, a new and unique event on the golf calendar, is about to become a reality.

Long envisioned by tee addicts, the provincial title match to be inaugurated this summer, is the culmination of negotiations concluded this week by the Victoria Daily Times and the Vancouver Daily Province.

Co-sponsors of the event, the two newspapers completed major arrangements Wednesday. Minor details will be announced later.

Open to professional and amateurs alike, the B.C. championship will take the form of a 36-hole match between the respective match-play champions of Vancouver Island and Vancouver.

Only the approval of the B.C. Professional Golfers' Association is needed to complete arrangements. Ben Colk, BCPGA president, "likes the idea very much," he told Times publisher Stuart Keate in Vancouver today. "It'll be a shot in the arm for golf, particularly on the Island," Colk said.

Colk intimated that he would recommend acceptance of the proposal at the next meeting of the association.

In revealing the B.C. series, a novel and far-reaching step in the history of golf in the

Hughie Makes Sporting Gesture

In announcing the sponsorship of the Island match play championships, the Times is carrying on the part it has played in the furtherance of golf in the city. The tournament will remain under the jurisdiction of the Victoria and District Golf Committee who voted approval to the event at last Friday's annual meeting, and following several months of preliminary negotiations.

At its inception the Island Match Play Open was co-sponsored by the city association and a local radio station. Last year, when that partnership was severed, Hugh-Francis, a prominent city businessman, assumed sponsorship, and the event bore his name.

B.C. Playoff Plan Acclaimed

It opens with a qualifying round at Victoria Golf Club, March 27; match play follows each succeeding Sunday with the finals at Royal Colwood on May 1. Both semi-finals and finals will be over the 36-hole route with the scene of the tournament switching from course to course each week, Victoria Club, Uplands, Gorge Vale and Colwood being sites for the event.

Further details and particulars will be announced later.

In revealing Mr. Francis' voluntary withdrawal, V and D president Bill McColl said: "Hughie was only too willing. He said 'I'll be glad to help in any way that golf can be furthered in the city.'"

Later Mr. Francis stated: "It should be a wonderful boost for golf; I like golf and I'm certain that this tournament is one way in which the game can be publicized as it should be."

McColl hailed both moves as a great impetus for golf. He prophesied even greater success than the local tournament has enjoyed in the past and stamped the B.C. Match Play

Open final as a "wonderful idea."

"This has been needed for a long time," he said. "Too long has intercity competition between Vancouver and Victoria been lacking. This could be the forerunner to intercity team matches." (In that regard Vancouver has been contacted by the city association, but a reply has not yet been received.)

Colwood professional Bill Court said "it's terrific. This is just what we need."

TORONTO SHELVES STADIUM EXPANSION

TORONTO (BUP) — Toronto harbor commissioners have cold-shouldered a proposal to expand Maple Leaf Stadium for major league baseball.

The commissioners aired their objections to the $1,750,000 (M) expansion program in a letter to Mayor Nathan Phillips. They recommended an eight-point inquiry into the project before any action was taken, and pointed out federal legislation was needed before debentures could be issued for the project.

The commissioners said the stadium facilities would exceed any use except for baseball, a major league franchise should be guaranteed before an expansion program started. They also said the harbor commission was not created to develop and control sports arenas.

Golf's Younger Crop Expected to Cash In

By MURRAY SINCLAIR

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Eager youngsters are expected to play important roles in the $10,000 Tucson open golf tournament starting today.

The youth movement may be helped by the aches, pains and rustiness of some of the established, consistent money winners. The 6,409-yard, par 70 El Rio Golf and Country Club course should help the younger lads.

"There isn't a hard hole in the lot," said Peter Thomson of Melbourne. "We have courses as easy as this in Australia although we don't play tournaments on them." Ed Furgol of St. Louis, the U.S. open champ, has a cold and complains of pains in his chest. "I never felt so bad in my life," he said Wednesday.

Tommy Bolt, the tempestuous Texan from Houston, is defending champ here but has had a nasty cold in his shoulder that has hurt his play.

Lloyd Mangrum of Niles, Ill., couldn't come here because of liver trouble. Both he and Jimmy Demaret of Klamath Lake, N.Y., were won twice here.

HARPER RUSTY

Chandler Harper of Portsmouth, Va., another former winner here and a former PGA champ, flew here Wednesday. He is starting his first tourney of the winter. "Gosh, I'm rusty," he said. "I haven't had a chance to do much practicing."

Steady Ted Kroll, New Hartford, N.Y.; Jack Burke Jr., Klamath Lake, N.Y., second biggest money winner of 1954; consistent Cary Middlecoff, Memphis, Tenn.; and Bob Toski, Livingston, N.J., the kingpin as far as winning cash was concerned last year, are all missing.

Empire Games Deficit Still Vancouver's Baby

VANCOUVER (CP)—The federal government is reported to have rejected a request for a $50,000 contribution to the British Empire Games to meet a $155,000 deficit.

Reports from Ottawa Wednesday said Finance Minister Harris has taken the view that Vancouver should look after the deficit as it benefited by a $1,500,000 stadium and a $300,000 swimming pool built for the games.

The plan was to have Ottawa contribute $50,000, and the Vancouver civic and the British Columbia governments share the balance.

One report, however, said Mr. Harris might take a second look at the games committee request as he had asked for a more specific financial statement.

In Reserve Scores At Santa Anita

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)—Jockey Johnny Longden and Alberta Ranches' In Reserve teamed up as a winning combination Wednesday, beating a field of eight rival three-year-olds fillies with ease in the $22,550 Santa Ynez Stakes at Santa Anita Park.

In Reserve, the betting favorite, coupled with her stablemate, Madam Jet, led the pack to the wire by 2 1/4 lengths and the time for the seven furlongs was 1:22 2/5.

Calumet Farm's Miss Arlett was second and Mrs. Nat Goldstone's Solid Rae third.

Earning $13,300 for her Calgary owners, In Reserve returned $3.80, $2.70, $2.20.

Baker Eyes Valdes Now

MORE (UP)—Big Bob Baker, who toppled tall Willie James in the second round, was seeking a March fight today with Cuba's Nino Valdes, top-ranking heavyweight contender.

"I licked Valdes two years ago and I'll stop him the next time," said Pittsburgh Bob, who Wednesday night knocked out James of Roxbury, Mass., at 2:50 of the second round of their nationally televised bout in the Coliseum.

Matchmaker Billy Brown of the International Boxing Club said, "I'd like to stage the Baker-Valdes return bout at Madison Square Garden on March 11 or 18, but Valdes isn't eager."

Baker, fourth-ranking contender, outpointed Valdes on May 5, 1953, at Huntington, W.Va. Favored at 3-1, Baker staggered James with a right to the chin. He followed immediately with a left hook and two rights that dropped six-foot-three-inch Willie in sections in a corner. Referee Benny Goldstein counted "ten" when James was still trying to regain his feet.

Baker took Wednesday's bout on short notice and made quick work of it. Middleweights Joey Giardello and Al Andrews were slated originally for a return scrap but Andrews withdrew because of a side injury.

Experts Agree Wes Great Mile Threat—Wes Agrees

NEW YORK (UP)—Exactly 20 years ago they were saying that if "anybody" was to run the four-minute mile it would "have to be" a young man from Kansas named Glenn Cunningham.

Glenn Cunningham never did, although in a specially paced mile he was clocked in 4:04.4. And it wasn't until last year that two men finally were able to shatter the four-minute barrier.

But now they are saying that if "anybody" ever runs a 3:55 mile it will "have to be" a young man from Kansas named Wes Santee.

Wes Santee thinks that this time the prophets will be right. Already the cocky young cowboy from Kansas has eclipsed the feats of Cunningham, his boyhood idol. At 22, he figures it is simply a matter of time, whether you look at in years or seconds.

"According to the experts you hit your peak at 26," says the lean, stringy young man who already has run 4:00.6. "Well, I won't be 23 until March 25, so I figure to improve, don't I? On this basis I should have four more good years."

To some that may sound conceited. To Wes, a headstrong fellow who developed his short, choppy stride on his father's 4,000-acre ranch near Ashland, Kans., it's simply facing facts.

"Sure, I'm great," he grins. "If I don't think so, how can I expect to win?"

Wes, who has been smashing records since he ran a 4:02.4 mile in 1953, put the track world in a tizzy recently when he set a world indoor mark of 4:03.8. That clipped a second and a half off the 4:05.3 mark posted by Gil Dodds seven years ago.

Santee wasn't too impressed. He hopes to do 3:57 this year and whether it comes indoors or out doesn't make too much difference. Always ahead as a lure is John Landy's 3:58 world record for the distance.

Compensation Likely For Loss of House

Amendment to Taxation Act Enables Claim To Be Laid By Victim of Forced Tax Sale

Mrs. Erica Booth, whose Westview home was sold without her knowledge for $30 in a tax sale, will be able to claim compensation from the provincial government.

Mrs. Booth's $4,000 home was sold because she owed $16.83 in back taxes. She was not living at the house at the time, and notices of sale were returned to the provincial tax collector's office unopened.

After the house was sold to a real estate firm for $30, Mrs. Booth still didn't know about it, and spent $1,000 in repairs. Attorney-General Robert Bonney turned down a lawyer's request for a fiat to sue the government for indemnity, because all necessary legal requirements had been met.

AMENDMENT PROPOSED

Tuesday, the government introduced an amendment to the Taxation Act which will allow persons who have lost property through tax sales to claim compensation from the minister of finance.

If compensation is refused, the person will be able to take the claim to County of Supreme Court, and then, if necessary, to the Appeal Court on any point of law.

Mrs. Booth could not bring her case up for review under the amendment, according to legal officials, but once the Legislature has approved the principle of the bill, the government will be free to extend compensation on an ex-gratis basis.

The bill provides for compensation, but not for return of property sold. Mrs. Booth's case was brought up on the floor of the House by Anthony Gargrave (CCF-MacKenzie), who has threatened to introduce an enabling bill to provide aid for the elderly woman. A civil action is reported under way by Mrs. Booth's lawyer, and it is felt the government will not act to assist her until the litigation is completed.

Unpaid for Meal Brings Vagrancy Charge to Youth

A young man who didn't have the price of a meal but ordered one in a Johnson Street restaurant anyway was charged with vagrancy in city police court Wednesday.

Magistrate H. C. Hall remanded Michael J. Hoare, 21, no fixed address, to Friday for sentence after he pleaded guilty.

Police said Hoare ordered a $2.21 meal at a city restaurant and only had 40 cents to pay.

He told the officers he knew he would get picked up and thought he would get a good meal inside the jail.

Harbor Defense Group Warned Of Need for Emergency Planning

Esquimalt harbor would offer no sanctuary for commercial shipping if Victoria became a wartime target, Harbormaster Capt. Ronald G. Newall said Wednesday.

Addressing the first meeting of the Civil Defense Harbor Services committee, representing the major waterfront industries, Capt. Newall said:

"With the foreign situation the way it is today I think we have every right to make preparation for defense from attack."

In the event of attack William Head quarantine station was thought to be the only practical place within easy distance where large ships could be taken under their own steam or by tug if necessary.

LECTURES PLANNED

The committee made plans to give employees of waterfront industries lunch-hour lectures on disaster procedure.

Instruction will be given by qualified civil defense personnel from Greater Victoria Civil Defense Control Board, and will be designed to promote safety of workers, prevent destruction of property and facilitate rehabilitation.

Capt. Newall told the committee of the benefit to be derived from preparedness for civil disaster such as fire and explosion.

"Personnel," he said, "should be acquainted not only with how to protect themselves, but also the industry in which they are employed."

11-MAN GROUP

The committee, consisting of 11 men, including Victoria Fire Chief Frank Briers and civil defense co-ordinator Roger Peachey, is concerned with restoration of harbor facilities and industry as soon as possible after interruption. Employees will be approached with a view to impressing the fact that their livelihood is at stake if services and industry is interrupted.

One of the biggest problems the committee must face and resolve with some form of policy is evacuation from the harbor—deep-sea, coastal—and smaller shipping if the city should become a target or is threatened by large-scale fire or explosion.

Dispersal of shipping, in such a manner as to avoid harbor blockage, will be the first consideration, Capt. Newall said.

Longest warning period of impending attack in war would be six hours, Capt. Newall told the committee.

Most of the firms represented at the meeting already have their own fire-fighting apparatus and schemes, Chief Briers said. One firm, the CPR Coast Steamships, has its own skeleton plan for protection of personnel and property, with duties allocated to certain key personnel.

Other firms will be encouraged to set up similar systems. The idea of drawing unions into the overall picture was also suggested. Protective plans could be aided by integration of unions in such operations as stevedoring, the committee felt.

Next meeting of a committee under the harbormaster will be among different representative firms.

Those present were: Bert Barnes, B.C. Forest Products; Gordon Whiting, Island Tug and Barge; Cyril Jones, city engineer; Capt. O. J. Williams and Capt. F. E. Batten, CPR; R. A. Bell, CNR; Thomas McPherson, Home Oil; Thomas Moffat, Victoria Machinery Depot; Gordon Verley, Bapco Paint.

FIRST NARROWS BRIDGE HELD NO BIG BARGAIN

A canny Scot told the legislature Wednesday the provincial government was "sold down the river" when it bought the Lions Gate Bridge spanning entrance to Vancouver harbor.

Robert Strachan, (CCF-Cowichan-Newcastle) said he didn't object to the government buying the bridge, but he didn't think it should have paid twice the amount it cost to build back in 1937.

The bridge was bought from the First Narrows Bridge Co., which was owned by the Guinness interests of England, for about $6,000,000. It cost about $5,700,000 to build, said Strachan.

"But," he said, "in 1937 $5,700,000 in pounds sterling represented $22,000,000, while today $6,000,000 is only worth $1,000,000."

He told Premier Bennett that "if you don't watch out some one will sell you the Brooklyn Bridge. The First Narrows Bridge people are sure slick, because they sure put one over on you," he said.

Ovaltine

tion in the B.C. legislature Wednesday as the budget debate droned through its third day.

The motion, introduced by Cowichan - Newcastle CCFer Robert Strachan, was the same non-confidence motion moved by opposition leader Arnold Webster Monday, and thrown out on a technicality.

Wednesday, the House divided on party lines, with the government's majority carrying it through the vote without difficulty. The vote was 26-20.

Speeches are getting longer, as the rush of the Throne Speech debate is forgotten. Mr. Strachan spoke for more than two hours and provincial secretary Wesley Black spoke for more than one and one-half hours.

During the Throne Speech, which Premier Bennett, cut to the shortest period in history in order to bring down the budget and the new school finance formula, speeches averaged less than half an hour.

Members of the cabinet, who normally would report on their department's activities in the Throne Speech debate are speaking in the budget debate instead.

For a few minutes Wednesday, however, the hectic rush of the throne debate appeared to be carrying over. Premier Bennett, under attack by Strachan, asked whether the CCF member was attempting a "fillbuster."

"Is the premier going to rush this debate too?" asked Strachan.

"No," the premier answered.

Poodle Most Popular Pedigreed Dog in '54

LONDON (CP)—The poodle was 1954's most popular pedigree dog, kennel club statistics show.

Next on the list came cocker spaniels, holders of the title for 20 years, followed by Alsations, boxers, Welsh corgis, pekingese, retrievers, dachshunds, cairn terriers and wire-haired fox terriers.

In 1938, the poodle ranked 47th out of 105 breeds, while the boxer, fast social climber of the canine clique, rated 70th.

Unofficially, of course, the mongrel still is top dog—in numbers anyway.

SCHOOL GOES ON at the Solarium for children making progress in their fight against crippling disease. Raymond, he'll be nine on Feb. 28, is from Sidney. He takes a lesson with Physiotherapist Mrs. Malleson in a special standing table. Contributions to the Shower of Dimes conducted by the Solarium Junior League help Raymond and other stricken children on their way to recovery. The campaign which has until the end of the month to gain its objective of $30,000 stands today at $6,312.

New School Formula Good, Not Perfect, Says CCFer

An opposition member of the legislature Wednesday said the Social Credit government's new school formula will be good for school districts.

Robert Strachan (CCF, Cowichan-Newcastle) was the first opposition member to come out in approval of the education financing system proposed in Premier Bennett's budget speech last week.

"Education in B.C. again is on the way up—this looks like a good formula for education in this province," said Mr. Strachan.

He qualified his approval somewhat later in his speech when he said: "Remember, I said it is good, not perfect. It will not necessarily be of benefit to municipalities."

Gaming Charge Against Three Hotel Employees

AGASSIZ, B.C. (CP)—The manager and three staff members of luxurious Harrison Hot Springs Hotel 15 miles east of here, were charged Wednesday with keeping a common gaming house. The charges followed a raid by five RCMP officers.

Seized were six pin-ball machines in a room adjacent to the hotel bar.

Charged were Mason Nurick, the manager; bartender Ben Nelson and waiters John Harris and Fred Vogelsang. They were due to appear in court Thursday.

Agassiz is 70 miles east of Vancouver.

Third Hearing In B.C. Murder Opens Monday

VANCOUVER (CP)—Third trial of Lawrence Bryan Vincent, 28-year-old carnival worker charged with the murder of Donna Lee Corbett at Quesnel, will open in Supreme Court here Monday.

MERGER ACTION SPEEDED

Canadian Unions Like AFL-CIO Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—A developing move for amalgamation of Canada's two biggest labor congresses got impetus Wednesday from a long step toward AFL-CIO unification in the United States.

Spokesman for the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada and the Canadian Congress of Labor, which have a combined membership of 855,000, said the action of U.S. associates of the Canadian bodies will speed eventual amalgamation on this side of the border.

The U.S. action was taken at Miami Beach, Fla., where committees of the AFL and CIO agreed to a merge into a single 15,000,000-member federation, subject to later convention ratification.

In the view of qualified observers here, this may come about finally in the spring of 1956 and could be followed by organic unity of the TLC and CCL later that year.

In Toronto, Claude Jodoin, TLC president and A. R. Mosher, CCL president, both expressed jubilation over the move.

Bertrand Russell's Son Gains Divorce

CAERNARVON, Wales (Reuters)—Viscount Amberley, son of Earl Russell—philosopher Bertrand Russell—was granted a divorce decree here Wednesday because of the adultery of his wife, Susan, daughter of the late American poet, Rachel Lindsay. They were married in Washington in 1946.

Our Very Own Guide to the Flora, Fauna, and Bird Life of British Columbia

(Published Occasionally in the Interests of Higher Education.)

THE SEA GULL.—In the first place, the sea gull's name is not sea gull at all, but just plain gull. See? He (or she, I never could tell the difference for sure) is a member of the warm-blooded vertebrate family, which isn't surprising, as all birds are.

But all birds aren't members of the family Laridae and the sub family Larinae, and gulls are. This gives gulls a superiority complex and accounts for their haughty, reserved expressions.

Gulls are found all over the world including even Lake Winnipeg, which proves even a gull can be foolish. The most beautiful of all gulls is Pagophila eburnea, which breeds in the High Arctic where few people can see it, as it is ashamed of its name.

The gulls we see around these parts aren't as beautiful as Pagophila eburnea, but they are the best we can afford under the present monetary system. Their formal, or family, name is Larus occidentalis, although it was named on purpose.

The non-Larus name of our gulls is Western gull, and their favorite tune is the West, a nest, and you, dear. However there is no evidence that gulls build nests, as they are much too lazy and would rather stand on one leg waiting for someone to throw a dead fish away.

Gulls have very powerful wings and can stay in the air for long periods without moving them. However they cannot fly on one wing, even as you and I.

THE DOGWOOD.—This is a shrub or smallish tree of the genus Cornus, of the family Cornaceae. Some people say it is the floral emblem of British Columbia and other people say it isn't. However if you cut some down, you shouldn't, and will be fined for so doing.

This sort of protection would not be given if dogwood were called catwood.

Dogwood does not have to pay a license. Not yet, anyway.

THE WAPITI.—Rarely if ever seen on Vancouver Island but I put it in here because it sounds so nice.

(A further edition of Our Very Own guide to B.C. Flora, etc., may appear sometime. Meanwhile, clip and save this for handy reference or for use as a pipe cleaner.)

Long-time residents of Victoria who talk of the "good old days" rarely say they'd like to go back to the "old fashioned" winter of 1916. Late January and mid-part of February saw city crippled by record snow fall; more than seven inches hit Victoria January 29, and on February 9, 39 years ago today, when photo at left was taken, soldiers were helping dig streets clear. Schools were closed, wood and coal supplies ran low, transportation was crippled. First World War soldiers in picture are from Timberwolves, the 88th Fusiliers, and 67th Scots. Times photographer Bill Halkett took second shot today from identical angle as 1916 photo, which was made into a postcard and had good sale at the time. Most Victorians agree they prefer 1955 version of "winter" weather.

Esquimalt Court Hears Only Three Assessment Cases

Esquimalt court of revision heard a total of three assessment appeals Wednesday, and turned down two of them.

The three-man board expressed surprise that so few appeals were entered—sharp contrast to large numbers heard in recent sittings in the city and Oak Bay.

Both appeals dismissed were entered by A. G. English, 463 Constance, who complained that assessors had over-valued two houses owned by him. The board felt he failed to put forward a case in asking that the property be assessed lower.

An appeal by John N. Fraser, on behalf of Royal Trust Co., asking a lower figure on a $30,000 assessment of the former Piddington Estate, 441 Wychbury, was upheld, and the figure was reduced to $25,000.

Boat Race Sponsor Sought

Lack of a sponsor might scuttle plans for the Victoria Inboard-Outboard Association for a motorboat race across the Strait of Juan de Fuca this summer.

A meeting of the group was held Wednesday night at a city department store, earlier named as sponsor, had withdrawn its support.

At present, the boatmen are angling for support of a service club. If this is obtained, it is likely the mid-August date will be washed out.

Members have been advised that the date would conflict with the Kelowna Regatta. The only other date which has been mentioned is "sometime in September."

The VIOA has traditionally held its main contests off Willows Beach Labor Day.

Construction Camp Living Conditions To Be Inspected

A committee to inspect living conditions in Vancouver Island construction camps will be set up by Victoria Building Trades Council (AFL), a meeting decided Wednesday night.

The meeting was told there have been complaints in the past that government health regulations are disregarded in many cases.

The committee will investigate and approve satisfactory camps, drawing the attention of authorities to camps which do not adhere to the law.

A publicity committee to advertise firms unfair to organized labor was set up by the council. Don Bushell, painters' and plasterers' agent, and Earl Allen, laborers' agent, were appointed to act.

Legal Battle Over BCE Bus Fare Increases Starts

Opening shots of a legal battle against bus fare increases in Vancouver granted the B.C. Electric Co. last September by the Public Utilities Commission, reopened before the B.C. appeal court here today.

Petitioners against the increased bus rates are the city of Vancouver, five other mainland cities and three private citizen organizations.

Petitioners at this morning's hearing requested Mr. Justice H. I. Bird to appeal the PUC fare rates decision on points of law.

This would enable petitioners to question jurisdiction of the commission to impose fare rates as well as to argue the interpretation of the PUC act.

Mr. Justice Bird after hearing both parties said he would reserve judgment until the end of the week.

Vancouver city at the same time asked that the entire case be traversed to the Vancouver sitting of the appeal court next month. The case is scheduled for a further hearing on the facts in Victoria March 16.

A. E. Grauer, B.C. Electric president, in an affidavit presented the court, said a delay in hearing of the case would jeopardize the business of his company.

City Mill Plans Major Expansion

City May Lose Gov't. Building To Mainland

James Bay Protests Seen Detrimental By Planners

New B.C. government buildings may be built in Vancouver, Burnaby and New Westminster if opposition to expansion in the James Bay area continues, it was claimed today by Town Planning Commission chairman, Major H. C. Holmes.

He stated "... there is constant pressure" on the government to take part of the administration to the mainland.

That will be a major argument of the planning group when it defends a proposed by-law to limit apartment buildings south of the Legislative Buildings.

The matter was slated for discussion with council today but it was indicated that the matter would be again tabled.

STALLED

The by-law passage was stalled two weeks ago when a petition signed by 109 residents opposed the zoning change which would permit extension of the buildings to Beacon Hill Park. A "Mail" lined on each side with administration buildings, was envisaged. It would stretch from the present buildings to the vicinity of Goodacre Lake.

Major Holmes added that the demand for apartment lots isn't as great now as it was in 1953.

He said that advertised in daily papers are over 50 apartments for rent. There are over 2,000 lots zoned for apartments in the city and only 102 apartments have been built in the last ten years. Last year 23 were built.

LOWER DEMAND

Average rent had decreased recently he said, an indication that demand was lowering.

He said the proposed planning changes affect only 115 lots with regard to limiting apartment building. Sixty-five of these are already owned by the government and of the remaining 50, only 15 are vacant.

"Is the ordinary investor going to buy where he has to pull down a dwelling?" he asked.

"There has only been one new apartment in that area in 25 years."

"The province is growing. So will the civil service. New office space will be needed. Where is it going to be? Will the government look favorably on acquiring land which is dotted with costly apartments? Or are they going to put up their new blocks, elsewhere, in Vancouver or New Westminster. There is constant pressure."

Driving Charges Bring $25 Fines

Charges of driving without a current driver's license and driving without a liability insurance card contrary to a license restriction brought $25 fines for two naval ratings when they appeared today in city police court.

Norman Howard Hudkins, HMCS James Bay, was fined $25 or five days in jail for driving without a license.

George Alexander Hingsperger, HMCS Athabaska, paid $25 for driving without a liability insurance card.

Moore-Whittington To Spend $366,000

An expansion program to cost $366,000 was announced today by Moore-Whittington Lumber Co., Ltd.

W. Stanley Moore, president, and E. Ronald Whittington, secretary, in a joint statement revealed plans for a $266,000 barker and chipper installation at the two M-W sawmills facing onto Selkirk Water, and a $100,000 addition to the firm's factory and retail store on Bridge Street.

Mr. Moore, who manages the sawmill, end of the company's operation, said the consultant engineering firm of Industrial Mill Services Ltd., Vancouver, had been engaged to plan the layout of the addition at the mills.

The barker and chipper will serve both mills, which operate as wholly-owned subsidiaries of the parent company, one known as Harbor Sawmills Ltd., and the other as P. W. Sawmills Ltd.

EMPIRE GAMES 'HAD IT', SAYS PREMIER BENNETT

The provincial government does not intend bailing Vancouver out of a reported $155,000 British Empire Games deficit, Premier W. A. C. Bennett indicated today.

The premier said the provincial government's contribution to the B.E.G. totaled $311,912—an outright grant of $200,000 and another $111,912 through easement of the amusement tax and pari-mutuel betting tax at special racing days.

He said Vancouver's Mayor Fred Hume has agreed with him that the provincial contribution was "very generous."

A report from Ottawa Wednesday said the federal government also has rejected a plea for more financial aid.

The province's share was "much more" than that given by Ottawa, the premier said, and Ottawa's reported refusal to grant further aid "is just another refusal to help out anything in B.C."

B.E.G. officials have not released a final financial statement, but it is learned a deficit of about $155,000 resulted from last summer's games.

Copper Jewelry Will Tone Up Anything You May Wear

By PENNY SAVER

I have a weakness for copper jewelry, perhaps many of you have, too. It is such an uncluttered and classic type of jewelry, I simply can't resist its charm. I saw a plain copper half-bracelet, the ones that can be made to fit your wrist. There are narrow ones, about 3/4-inch wide, and ones of an inch wide. Both are the same price... $1.49. Imagine! I could hardly believe it. They're locally made, and it's quite a thrill to know that these aren't assembly-line pieces, they are all hand-turned.

There are very plain earrings to match, too. These cost about $2.50.

In spite of snow, hail and rain, spring flowers are appearing. Now is the time to get a "frog" for those shallow planters and vases. I came across some today that are made of very lightweight clear plastic. The two sizes are $1 and $1.35. A Swedish product, they have a suction attachment at the base so that makes them fasten securely to the bottom of the dish or vase, and your floral arrangements will not fall over. I think they're wonderful... so will you.

Instructions for use are on the back... In Swedish! But don't let that worry you, the salespeople are wonderful and will explain all to you.

Now for something to arrange... tulips are selling at about $3 a dozen, and daffodils at $1.50. The smaller blossoms in both these flowers are slightly less. Flowers are always welcomed, whether there is an occasion to warrant them or not.

Always an eye open for clothes, I've found an adorable collar-and-cuff set made of mottled cowhide. The cuffs are a type that would look terrific on a classic tailored long-sleeved or three-quarter-sleeved dress. They are so smart looking... I hope someone in my house takes the hint.

There was another set, this

RECEIVES FIRST UN FELLOWSHIP

WINNIPEG (CP) — Miss Una MacLean, Calgary, has been awarded the United Nations fellowship of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Mrs. G. R. D. Laycock of Winnipeg, national president, announced Wednesday.

Award of the first $500 fellowship, established in Toronto last July, was open to any member of any business and professional women's club affiliated with the federation.

Miss MacLean, a vice-president of the federation, will attend sessions of the Status of Women Commission at the United Nations, New York, March 14-April 1; the Human Rights Commission, March 1-25, and some sessions of the economic and social council which meets March 29-April 29.

James Bay — John Sawyer, who won a trip to New York last summer in an IOOF essay contest, told members of James Bay PTA that although activities of the UN best known to the public are those concerned with peace and justice, its work on self-government for colonial peoples, as well as its work on educational progress throughout the world is of equal importance and interest. Canada is playing an increasingly important part in the UN, he pointed out. Mrs. J. Gower introduced the speaker. A brief candlelighting ceremony commemorated Founder's Day, with Mrs. J. W. Sulzbury giving details of the work of the late Mrs. W. Lorrimer, founder of the PTA in British Columbia, and first president of the James Bay group. A new member, Mrs. Pearl Edworthy, lighted a candle to the past; C. Michell, principal of South Park School, to the present, and Mrs. H. Brigger, a quarter-century member, to the future. It was announced that proceeds from a variety program arranged by Stan James for a concert party in South Park School auditorium on Friday evening will be used toward purchasing warm windbreakers for boys of the school safety patrol.

Women Electors' Group Described By Miss Beek

Miss Verna Beek, speaking at a recent meeting of the Civic Interest Group of the Victoria Business and Professional Women's Club, described activities of a group of women in eastern Canada, known unofficially as the Vigilantes with Mrs. John W. Falkner representing the Association of Women Electors being official observer at Toronto City Council for more than 17 years.

Working through radio, newspapers, pamphlets and public meetings, these women electors have been able to recommend such projects as re-housing and slum clearance, and have given practical help to council regarding family allowances, relief and nutritional questions. In addition, they have prepared numerous briefs on community matters, offering suggestions in a spirit of co-operation rather than of criticism, Miss Beek stated.

Mrs. Norma Smith presided and announced that at next meeting of the group, on Feb. 24, in the clubroom, 904 Government Street, Hugh Stephen of the Town Planning Commission would give a talk on proposed rezoning of certain James Bay areas.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Be Red-Blooded Woman; Eat the Iron-Rich Foods

When we see a very vigorous person we are likely to say that he is "red blooded." This expression has foundation in fact. You must have an adequate supply of iron in your diet if you are going to feel like living with verve.

The iron you consume affects the red blood corpuscles in your blood. An optimum number of these corpuscles have a happy influence on your vitality. Anemia, or too few of these little bodies, will cause extreme fatigue and lowered resistance, and if the condition is really drastic it is dangerous. Therefore it behooves us to be certain that we obtain an adequate amount of iron.

Around 70 per cent of the iron in your body is in your blood. It is also a part of the nucleus of every cell in your body. Some of the best sources are: liver, beef, ham, egg yolk, milk, bran, oysters, molasses, whole wheat, rolled oats, split peas, greens, especially spinach. Do not drag about with exhaustion simply because you do not eat enough of the iron-rich foods.

Experiments have shown that calcium seems to be the friend of youth.

When used in controlled diets on experimental animals, it seems to delay the signs of aging. Unless there is some special reason for not doing so, every adult should have at least two glasses of milk a day and three or four are probably better. It is believed by most authorities that if you get enough protein foods in your diet you need not worry about your sulphur intake.

The most common dietary deficiencies in the average diet seem to be, calcium and vitamins B and C. I have recently written about these.

Fine nutrition and a happy outlook seems increasingly to add up to good health and prolonged youthfulness. Take advantage of today's knowledge of these, and control both in your daily living.

Between Ourselves

By ELIZABETH FORBES

This is the time of year when women's clubs and societies... yes, and men's groups, too... are looking around for a project. Something that will give them a feeling of participation in a worthwhile cause. Something that appeals to the imagination and that will grow and bear fruit as the days, months and years go on.

Bessie

I've got just the project that should appeal to all these clubs and societies. It can be whipped into shape in a matter of weeks. In fact it will have to be done in a matter of weeks... if it is to be done at all.

In a round about way I'm talking about a young Victorian... good looking and with an abundance of talent who has a burning ambition to develop that talent and to reach the top in his chosen field.

He is Stanley Martin, well-known baritone. Stanley has proven that he can go places if he is given a chance. Four times he has been chosen to appear on the "Singing Stars of Tomorrow," Canada-wide program, and he has received much commendation and also awards from this outstanding group.

He has a great desire to go on to further success and if his ambition is to be realized he must start immediately. He must go to eastern Canada for further training. His teacher Mrs. Lugin Fahey is firm in this belief.

To do this, money is needed. Although Stan Martin has tried to save the small amounts he has received for his singing, it is not nearly enough.

You Can Help in Worthwhile Cause

With this in mind and with a firm belief in his ability a group of Victoria music lovers have arranged to present the young singer in concert on Tuesday, March 1, in the Metropolitan Church. They hope to raise $1,000.

Here's where the clubs and societies could come in. It's a project to delight the heart of all good citizens. A project that has at its core the chance to help a worthy young Victorian on his way to success.

The Metropolitan Church holds 1,500 people. If all the tickets are sold, Stan Martin would have a wonderful addition to his small savings account... and he would be practically on his way to eastern Canada.

On the program with him will be Peter Hodgson, organist and Grace Timp, as accompanist. A grand piano has been offered for the concert and there have already been many private subscriptions to cover expenses.

What can clubs and societies do? SELL THE TICKETS, of course. It wouldn't be hard if a good percentage of the various groups in the city were to take even 20 each... AND SELL THEM.

Interested? Then telephone Mrs. William Ellis, 2-1940 or Mrs. Lillian Smith, 3-5248. They have the tickets for you.

Help in this worthwhile cause and you will be adopting a project you can well be proud of... not only now but in the future. Given his chance, Stan Martin will certainly attain to great success and bring much honor to Victoria.

An Ahousat Missionary

Secretary of the Womens' Missionary Society at isolated Ahousat off Island's west coast, Mrs. Daisy Sutherland, 35, (right) shows missionary-nurse Miss Agnes Quinn, totem carved at Nootka by blind Indian. Totem is in home of Rev. Joseph Jones, 299 View Royal Road.

Liquor is still the big cause of trouble among Indians.

So says tiny Miss Agnes Quinn, for the past four years "most things to most Indians" at the United Church mission at rain-soaked Ahousat Island, off Vancouver's west coast.

The 33-year-old missionary-nurse, minister and general mentor to the 400-Indian population says "it would be better if liquor was completely controlled for Indians. Even on beer they are bad. Some of the Indians themselves want liquor outlets closed as they realize they just can't leave it alone."

In Victoria to attend the Presbyterian of the Womens' Missionary Society, meeting this week, Miss Quinn says the main trouble is Indians spend seasonable time fishing, then have nothing else to do for the rest of the year. So they gravitate to drink.

She is trying to get over this situation by building a recreation centre in the remote village. Main drawback is the cost involved; and as yet the Indian Affairs Department has not stepped forward with help.

She and the two native teachers at the school are trying to start a local, if small, industry in basket weaving for the girls. Present class consists of 18. Carpentry is taught boys by Roy Sutherland, a native resident.

If these industries got going, it would take up much of the slack time now devoted to liquor. Under carpentry would

Ukrainian Baritone In Thrilling Debut

Domety Berezenetz Shines at Musical Presentation; Continental Style Charms

By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON

An evening of music that provided both charm and excitement for a Victoria Musical Art audience at the Sirocco, Wednesday night, was the February presentation of the society.

The charm came through the delightful costuming and singing of a group of six ladies, the Victorienne Vocal Ensemble; the excitement from hearing—for many of those present for the first time—the arresting voice of a new personality in this city's musical life.

Domety Berezenetz, Ukrainian baritone, to whom the second half of the program was devoted, is a colorful, vivid figure on the stage, presenting his songs with such expressive vitality that even if he was possessor of a less beautiful and robust voice, one would respond to the magic of his style.

Especially in such familiar numbers as Schubert's "My Lone Abode" and Schumann's "Two Grenadiers" was his audience made aware of his outstanding interpretive power.

His fine resonant voice has an impressive range and his production technique is smooth, flexible and capable of great virtuosity. In style and stage manner he definitely reflects the great European tradition of concert, stage and opera.

Three groups of six songs, madrigals, art songs and folk songs, were the offering of the Victorienne. Thelma Johns is leader of this group, which also includes Peggy Moore, Gladys Gillie, Marjorie Goodwin, Alys Hawes and Nell Gillespie, with Dorothy Gough as accompanist.

Wearing various hued Victorian period gowns, they gave a lively, musically expert performance, showing an acute understanding of this particular art, which might be described as akin to that of the chamber ensemble.

In the unaccompanied madrigals there was precision, and a skillful blending and weaving of parts, good balance and delicacy in the vocal line.

But it was in the arrangement of Brahms' "Sappho Ode," a delightful Bantock number, "On—Himalaya," Grieg's "My Johann," "Follow Me Down to Carlow," the Pennsylvania Dutch, "Spin, Spin, My Darling Daughter," and the lullaby arrangement of Palmgren's "May Night," that they excelled, bringing delightful mood and character to their performance.

Grace Timp, who played the challenging piano parts of Professor Berezenetz songs with a brilliance and dash that matched the singer, and Mrs. Gough, added much to the pleasure of the evening.

CAPAC Criticizes Exemption Granted Charitable Groups

OTTAWA (CP)—A performing rights society today urged tightening of Canadian copyright law to force juke-box operators to pay performing fees.

The society said it is estimated gross juke-box receipts in Canada total $35,000,000 annually. The Composers, Authors and Publishers Association of Canada also said it objects to exempting educational, social, charitable, religious and fraternal organizations from paying performing rights fees.

CAPAC argued that these organizations must pay for other services and supplies and "are not entitled to ask for special privileges in respect of intellectual property."

CAPAC is an organization which collects fees for public performances of musical and literary works. Fees are turned over to authors and others with claims on the works used.

"No special group of people has any meritorious claim to be exempted from respecting the property in copyright because of the activities of its members," the association said in a 7,000-word brief to a royal commission studying Canada's copyright, trade mark, patent and industrial designs legislation.

Freed RCAF Flier
Tells Why He Lied
Truth Took on Communist Standards
After Brain-Washing, MacKenzie Admits

By DAVE MCINTOSH
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)
MONTEBELLO, Que. (CP)—Squad. Ldr. Andy MacKenzie says he believes he was released by the Communists because the Chinese realize Canada is a growing world power.

It was the first public explanation put forward by the RCAF flier ace for his release from a Communist Chinese prisoner-of-war camp in December after two years' imprisonment.

MacKenzie, addressing the annual convention of the Air Cadet League of Canada Wednesday, was also making his first public speech since his release. He and his wife, Joyce, were given a standing ovation by league members.

"I feel a bit embarrassed when people say I'm a hero," MacKenzie said in his quiet voice. "I'm not—I was completely beaten by these Chinese people."

This was a reference to the fact that, after 16 months in solitary confinement, he signed a false confession that he had invaded "sacred Chinese air space" and had been briefed to do so by the U.S. Air Force, with whom he was serving as an exchange pilot in Korea.

Actually, MacKenzie said, he never flew over China and had never been told to do so. He was shot down 15 miles inside North Korea and later, covered with a tarpaulin and handcuffed, was "sort of smuggled into China."

"Here is the gist of the whole thing," MacKenzie told his hushed audience.

"They (the Chinese Communists) have a different interpretation of the truth than we do. The truth to us is something that is known to us only. For instance, that is a glass and we know it is a glass and we say it is a glass."

"They look at it differently. They say the truth they wanted from me is something that will help the people. Now by that they mean naturally their Communist world proletarian revolution."

"They are convinced that the world eventually will be taken over by the proletariat. They gave me a lot of talk that the world and our society, a capitalist society, was controlled by a minority and the people were suffering."

"Now, they claim, the truth they wanted me to tell them was something that would help this course of theirs. That truth, which to me was a perfect lie, would help their cause and they told me I must tell them the truth."

"So I had to concoct a story which will go along with their way of thinking..."

"What I learned mainly is that Canada is a wonderful country. When you are deprived of your country, you appreciate coming back so much more than if you have never been away from it."

"They told me in China that the Chinese people want friendship with Canada. If they wanted friendship with Canada, that means we are a power."

MRP Scuttles
Pinay Try;
Pflimlin Next

PARIS (CP)—Economic expert Pierre Pflimlin, 48, a member of the Catholic Movement Republican Popular tonight agreed to try to form France's 21st postwar government.

He told President Rene Coty he would sound out parliament any sentiment reporting back on Friday evening on his chances. Pflimlin, whose name is pronounced "Flamin," hopes to form a government including all non-Communist parties.

The movement of trains over hundreds of miles of track is now controlled by a single operator through the railroads' centralized traffic control, and an electronically operated reservations board, already in service in the Pittsburgh terminal of the Pennsylvania Railroad and earmarked for ticket windows in other cities, speeds passenger service with up-to-the-minute data on available space for the coming week.

Microwave is replacing the telegraph, and the railroads are among the biggest buyers of electronic equipment. Automatic block signalling is now installed on 110,000 miles of track to flash data to the engineer on the condition of the track ahead, and many roads provide the additional protection of automatic controls which actually stop or slow trains if engineers fail to heed signals.

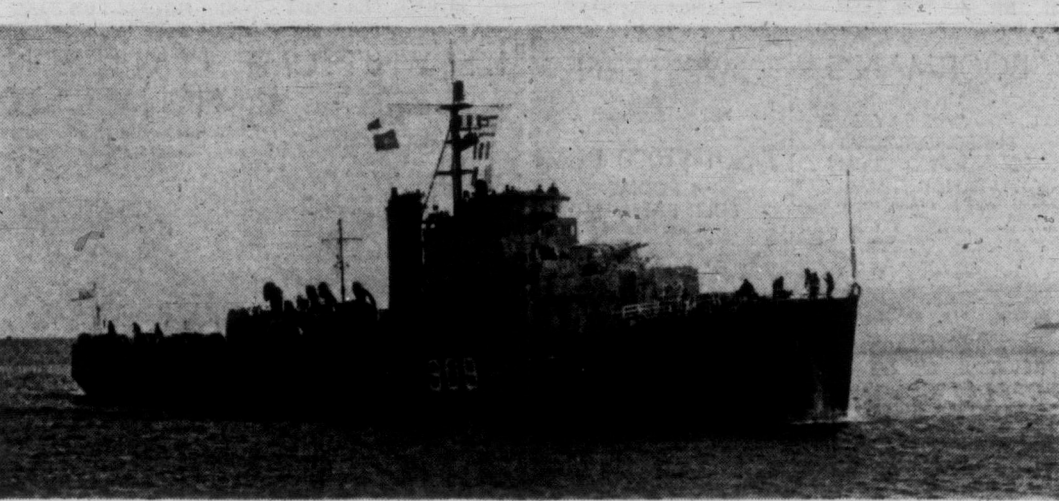

Greater Victoria Ratepayers' Body
To Hold First Public Meeting Soon

A public meeting will be held soon for formation of Greater Victoria Ratepayers' Association, according to A. De Mezey, Mr. De Mezey, 931 Foul Bay Road, has been named president of the proposed new body at a private meeting at his home last week. Six attended to hear George Bonner of Cobble Hill outline work of an island ratepayer's group.

A second meeting held Wednesday night laid plans for hiring of a hall and publicity, probably toward the end of the month or early March.

Post of first vice-president has been filled by H. Watson and the second vice-president is W. R. Freethy.

HMCS STE. THERESE, the Royal Canadian Navy's most recently commissioned ship, has sailed from Halifax for Esquimalt, under the command of Lieut.-Cmdr. W. F. Potter, RCN, of Victoria, to become part of the Second Canadian Escort Squadron. She is due here March 11. The Ste. Therese was commissioned in Saint John, N.B. on Jan. 20.

Chinese General In Mexican Jail Wants Freedom

By ROBERT PRESCOTT
United Press Staff Correspondent

MEXICO CITY (UP)—Pang-tsu Mow has been in jail two years, and a U.S. court has ruled that he owes the Chinese government $6,368,503.47.

"But I'm happy," he said. "Mow has a comfortable cell, furnished with radio and books. His attractive blonde American secretary visits him twice weekly. And he hopes to be freed 'very, very soon.'"

Two years ago Mow, a Chinese air force general, skipped across the border after one of history's biggest embezzlement scandals exploded in Washington.

He was accused of lining his pockets with a large share of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's $25,000,000 fund for purchasing American warplanes.

When Mexican secret agents caught up with him Aug. 9, 1952, Mow was living royally in the nearby resort town of Cuernavaca. His secretary, a former New York model, Miss Kelley, now 33, was arrested with him.

OPPOSED CORRUPTION
Mow readily admitted helping himself to "some" of the money but claimed he did it to fight against corruption in Chiang's Formosa government. He asked Mexico for political asylum.

The documents that mean freedom or extradition for Mow now lie on President Adolfo Ruiz Cortines' desk, after two years of shuffling through government offices.

"I am confident Mexico will recognize my status as a political refugee," Mow said. "I have done nothing to reproach myself for, either legally or morally."

"The Nationalist China government is persecuting me only because I dared fight corruption."

While waiting for a final decision, however, Mow admits "things are fairly comfortable here—much better than Formosa would be."

SAFER IN MEXICO
Miss Kelley, who has been associated with Mow since 1947, brings the 50-year-old former general books, magazines, food, medicine and clothing. She was held eight days in the same guardhouse with Mow before she was released.

Vowing to "stick around" to help him, she lives in a modest Mexico City apartment and spends Monday and Friday visiting days with the Chinese prisoner.

Mow's chances of winning his fight against extradition took a jolt when Emilio Portes Gil, a former president, became legal representative of Nationalist China in the case, and a Washington, D.C., court later ruled that Chiang is entitled to collect $6,368,503.47, plus six per cent interest, from Mow.

However, the one-time "father of the Chinese air force," said his Mexican attorneys have assured him that Mexico will not allow him to be extradited because the punishment for embezzlement in Formosa is likely to be more severe than it would be in this country. He'd probably face a firing squad.

"That's why I don't mind it too much here in prison," Mow added.

James Gillespie, 3821 Epsom Drive, was fined a total of $35 or eight days in city police court today when he pleaded guilty to two traffic charges.

He was charged with failure to display current year license plates on his vehicle and with not properly displaying a motor vehicle license in a conspicuous place.

Irwin Describes Parliament As Monument to Freedom

By GAIL STOTT
Times College Reporter

Speaker of the Legislature Thomas Irwin told a large group of College and Normal students that parliament is a living monument to one of the greatest battles in history, one which gained for the British freedom from absolute monarchy.

Mr. Irwin stressed the need for the government to be brought before the students. People today are becoming divorced from the government, he said. They regard their members as men more powerful than they are, and forget that the government is a representation of themselves.

He gave an outline of the history of parliament, and pointed out how certain traditions still exist in sessions today. Before a money bill may be passed, the speaker must first get a message from the lieutenant-governor.

When a speaker is elected, no one may speak in the House except elected members. The clerk may only point to the mover and seconder of the motion.

Mr. Irwin told the students that the Parliament Buildings were theirs and they were free to visit them any time they wished. To get a copy of any bill, they could write to the Queen's Printer and they would receive one.

CPR, CNR Plan Joint Service To North Points

VANCOUVER (BUP)—The Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Steamships will operate a joint up-coast shipping service between Vancouver, Kitchikan, beginning March 1, it was announced today.

At present, the two companies operate separate services. The joint announcement said that the Princess Norah will be renamed and will be used on the run.

The changeover was because there wasn't enough business to justify the separate services, the announcement said.

Youths Believed In Racket to Sell Stolen Cigarettes

VANCOUVER (BUP)—Police believed today that gangs of schoolboys might be behind a racket for the disposal of thousands of cigarettes stolen from groceries here.

The first break came when police searched a boy's locker at a city high school, looking for stolen money. They found a cache of cigarettes which they thought were stolen in a recent break-in.

The youth, who was not identified, said he got the cigarettes at a cut rate "from a special friend." He said he had already sold hundreds of them for twice as much as he paid for them.

Nanaimo Fire Fatal to Baby

Indian Child Burned to Death;
Three Others Escape Flames

NANAIMO — The eight-month-old son of Mrs. Virginia Fraser died at 5 p.m. Wednesday when a roaring fire destroyed a five-room home on the Nanaimo Indian Reserve.

Black Urges Awareness of CD Needs

In the event of a world struggle, every part of B.C. would face the danger of jettisoned nuclear bombs, crashing aircraft, guided missiles fitted with nuclear warheads, and radioactive fall-out.

With this vivid warning, provincial secretary Wesley Black, Wednesday, urged every city and town in B.C. to "accept its civil defense responsibilities."

"I would be failing my duty if I did not urge the people of this province again and again to defeat their indifference," said Mr. Black, whose department is responsible for civil defense.

The minister deplored the action of communities which withdraw their support of civil defense, and said "leave the whole matter to the senior governments."

"Municipalities themselves must be prepared to recognize their autonomous responsibility," he said.

Mr. Black said that if and when an attack is made, "no man, woman or child would be secure from its devastating effects, or could any level of government escape the burden of responsibility imposed by a free democracy."

He said "Not a square inch of this province can dissociate from that fact because of the immense areas of damage now possible, mutual aid between the smallest and the largest community is an absolute necessity."

SMALL FORCE — The number of citizens engaged in civil defense training, 44,775, is "still pitifully small," Mr. Black said.

If an enemy made a "saturation attack" using every available nuclear weapon, and this country was not prepared, no sustained counter-military effort would be possible.

Mr. Black said the province feels the federal government should bear a greater part of the financial burden of organization, training, equipment and supplies.

"But this government has no intention of sticking its head in the sand, whatever other governments may do," he said. "We shall continue with our preparations, and stress again and again the desirability for training on the part of every man, woman and teen-ager" in civil defense.

The fire is believed to have been started by a faulty stove. The baby's brother, five-year-old Rodney, saved two children from the flames but was driven back by the intense heat when he attempted to rescue the baby from a bedroom. Rodney took his two-year-old sister, Ramona, and a neighbor's child, four-year-old "Chico" Jones, to safety.

First to see the fire and give the alarm was Douglas White Jr., son of a neighbor, who called the reserve fire department. Equipment was taken to the fire by Dick and Don White, but the fire had gained such a foothold in the house that efforts to extinguish it were futile.

Nanaimo fire department was called to the scene, but nothing could be done. Friends on the reservation are looking after Mrs. Fraser and the children. An inquest will be held.

LOGGING CAMP MAKES RECORD — CHEMAINUS — Dave McIvor, personnel supervisor of the Copper Canyon logging operation of MacMillan & Bloedel Ltd., reports that up to Tuesday the operation had a record of 117 accident-free days.

This eclipses by 21 days the previous safety record set by the workers at Copper Canyon in 1952.

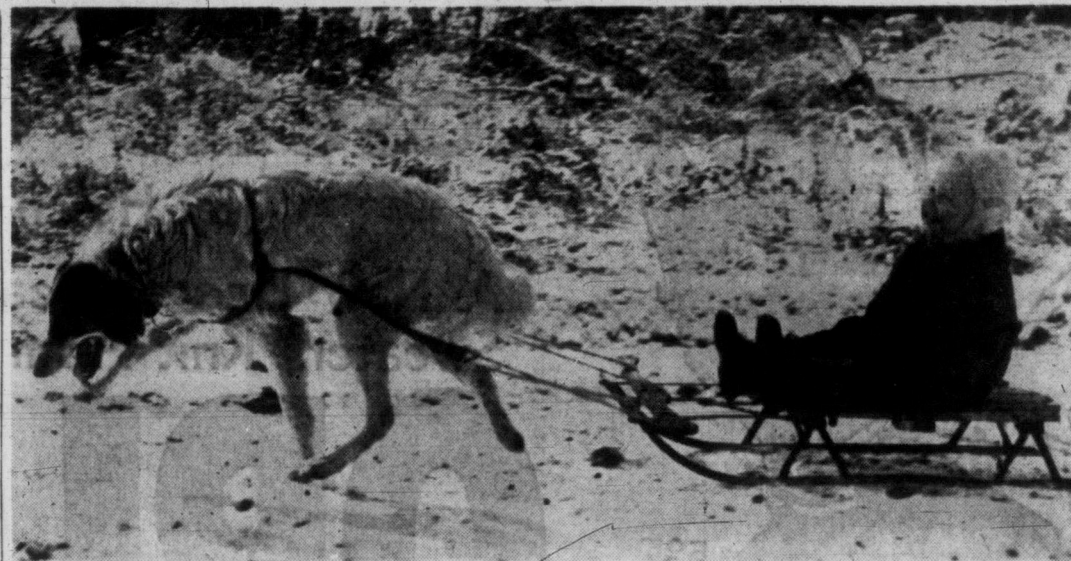

DUNCAN — Peter Andreef, 24, charged in police court here Wednesday with receiving stolen property, was committed for trial in a higher court and granted bail of $1,000.

His brother, Victor Andreef, 18, was sentenced to six months definite and 18 months indefinite on a theft charge, and two juveniles will be sentenced Feb. 21 for participating in thefts committed by the younger Andreef.

Charges were laid as a result of the theft of a logging block, worth $50, property of Taylor Logging Co. Ltd., that police alleged was turned over to Peter Andreef.

Victor Andreef also was sentenced for the theft of welding equipment and electric wire from B.C. Forest Products Ltd. at Youbou. The sentence will be served concurrently with the first.

Although self-conscious at first, he soon got idea, dragging young passenger along Meaford Road. "Shep" is mainly collie, not husky.

New School Construction Bids Received

Will Build at Logging Camp

PORT ALBERNI — Tenders were received by Alberni District School Board from local construction firms for the rebuilding of the two-room school at Franklin River Camp B. that was destroyed by fire at the end of last year.

The award is to be made after the approval of the insurance adjusters has been received. Tenders were: Thor M. Petersen Ltd., $18,947; Port Alberni Home Builders Ltd., $22,091; Southern Construction, $18,828; Turner Construction Co., $21,300.

The fall fair board asked trustees' permission to distribute seeds to all Grade 5 pupils in the district for the purpose of having a garden contest. Principals of the local schools will nominate teachers who are to represent the schools on the fair board.

Trailer Park Proposed for New Residents — PORT ALBERNI — In order to help accommodate workers that will arrive here to take part in the announced industrial expansion, program of MacMillan & Bloedel Ltd., a trailer park site has been recommended to city council.

Len Crowshaw, works superintendent, has proposed development of a lot on Bayonet Street near the city boundary that will accommodate 12 trailer lots, each 33 by 125 feet.

Mr. Crowshaw said the site is close to school, water, sewer, electrical power, and playground facilities, and could be easily drained. Most of the site is cleared, he said, and less than one day's work would be required to put it in shape.

Council left plans for the development of the park in the hands of Mr. Crowshaw and Fire Chief William Venables.

Agriculture Society Seeks Council Grant

'Start Ball Rolling,' C. Saanich Asked; Fair Called Show Window of Municipality

SAANICHTON — North and South Saanich Agricultural Society has asked Central Saanich council to "start the ball rolling" by making a grant toward its annual Class "B" fair.

Albert Doney and Victor Virgin, appearing before the council on behalf of the society, said it would be impossible to ask other municipalities for money if Central Saanich had not made a donation.

It was stated that the fair held here last fall cost $5,000, but proved to be the show window of the municipality. On a motion by Mr. Harold Andrew, the request was referred to the finance committee.

PERMIT GRANTED — Council permit was given to Jack Miller, operator of the boat house at the foot of Marchants Road, on the understanding that anchor piles and floats be moved back so as not to encroach on the foreshore.

The much-debated question of the status and maintenance of Tunstead and Bengondon Roads with public money again came to the fore. Mr. Andrew contended that work should be done as the road "was going to pot." Reeve H. Rupert Brown was against it, maintaining his position against using public funds for maintenance of private roads.

Clr. Peter Warren said Jeff Vantreight was willing to donate 50 feet to have the road taken over. He undertook to get the offer in writing.

Protests were being registered by gravel truckers concerning the 6,000-pound load limit on secondary roads, it was reported by V. W. Ismay, municipal clerk.

Solution of the problem, he suggested, was to amend the bylaw to establish a load limit along the lines of three-fifths of the rated gross weight. Mr. Ismay was instructed to prepare the by-law.

TRUCKERS PROTEST —

LANGFORD — Langford and District Lions Club members and their wives celebrated the club's charter night Tuesday with a dinner and dance at the Royal Colwood Golf Club.

Wilfred Munton, Vancouver district governor, was guest speaker and inducted as new members — Dr. Mark Roach, Floyd Rowe and Lewis Hagen in a special candlelight ceremony.

Guests included Herbert Bruch, M.L.A., and Mrs. Bruch. From out of the district were William Lockett, Toronto; George McDonald, West Vancouver; Don Rieme, acting president, Victoria Lions Club; Don McLeod, Esquimalt club president, and Mrs. McLeod, and John Priestly, Victoria. They were welcomed by Langford club president Fred Willway.

Roger Spurling, assisted by Les Smith and Jack Fuller, made arrangements for the celebration.

WANT DEALER HELP — One dealer, Dick Pattison, said the distributors apparently "want the dealers to set up a howl to council and plead their case for them." He said he had a few bottles on hand, and would not replenish the stock when these were gone.

The four companies concerned pay $50 a year for the right to distribute soft drinks in the municipality. In 1953 they paid $60, but this amount was reduced by $10 after an appeal. Council has already indicated this year it would again review the situation.

An official of the Nanaimo Bottling Works said that his company had not actually ceased deliveries but was "waiting for some word from council on the matter."

He said that companies involved had asked for an extension of time on the payment of the current license in order that

North Cowichan 'Dries Up' In Soft Drink License War

CHEMAINUS — Pop drinkers here and in other parts of the municipality may have enjoyed their last sip for some time to come, unless distributors reach an agreement soon with the municipality over their trade license fees.

The four companies distributing soft drinks in North Cowichan — Island Bottling Works and Nanaimo Bottling, both of Nanaimo, and two Victoria firms, Victoria Beverage and Western Bottling — have appealed against what they apparently feel is an excessive license fee, and meanwhile have stopped deliveries until the matter is settled. Most dealers here have not received pop since the middle of January.

Locally, only one or two dealers have small supplies of pop on hand, and when this supply is exhausted there likely will not be any more available for the public until the matter is ironed out.

Princess Relaxes in Indies, Visits Childhood Friends

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (Reuters)—Princess Margaret took a day off from her tour of the British West Indies today to visit two childhood friends, great-grandsons of the late Chicago millionaire Marshall Field.

The princess broke off her tour to be with Michael and Jeremy Tree, their father, Ronald Tree, and their mother, Lady Anne Cavendish.

It was also a reunion for the royal visitor's lady-in-waiting, Lady Elizabeth Cavendish. Lady Anne is her sister—and her brother, the Duke of Devonshire, also was in the party.

The princess relaxed in Tree's luxurious home at Heron Bay, Bridgetown. The Tree family hosted her to Queen Elizabeth when she, too, was a princess, before settling in Barbados in 1949.

Princess Margaret will appear to the public once later today, for a drive through the rolling hills of Barbados to visit Hottel, where the first English explorers landed on the island in 1605.

Armed Uprising Feared In Jo'burg Evacuation

B.C. Firm Gets Share in Dew Line Job

$200 Million Contract Is Split Three Ways

OTTAWA (CP)—Three Canadian companies will carry out a major share of developing the $200,000,000 aircraft-warning Arctic radar fence to be paid for by the United States.

The U.S. management contractor, Western Electric Co., has awarded DEW line (Distant Early Warning) contracts to: The Foundation Co. of Canada, Montreal; the Northern Construction Co., Vancouver; and Spartan Air Services Ltd., Ottawa.

The Spartan company will do a three-month aerial survey of the Arctic area where the radar chain will be located. The Foundation company will handle construction of the eastern half of the line and Northern Construction the western half.

Informants said most of the instruments to go into the radar line will be produced by U.S. companies, but other Canadian companies are likely to share in the big project.

TWO-YEAR JOB

The string of Arctic radar stations is expected to be completed in about two years.

About the same time as work proceeds in the Far North, construction also will be under way in developing the all-Canadian Mid-Canada line, a radar line 55th parallel. This radar line expected to cost about $150,000,000, will be paid for by Canada.

The DEW line and the Mid-Canada will be co-ordinated with the already established Pinetree network near the Canada-U.S. border to provide Canada with a large-scale warning system to raise an alarm in the event of enemy air attack from the north.

ALCAN TO BUILD NEW SMELTER AT KITIMAT

MONTREAL (CP)—The Aluminum Company of Canada said today a newly-formed subsidiary, Saguenay-Kitimat Company, is being awarded a construction contract for an additional smelter at Kitimat, B.C.

Construction is scheduled to start this month and the smelter is planned to start operating early next year, a statement said.

Vet Turns in $10 Million 'Radium' Vial

Provost Corporal's Souvenir Sends Geiger Counter Crazy

PORT ARTHUR, Ont. (CP)—A two-ounce vial of highly-radioactive powder has set police investigating the strange story of a former army provost corporal who says it was taken from the laboratory of a group of German scientists early in 1944.

It is believed the powder might be radium, which could be worth about $10,000,000 an official said.

The vial was turned over to Ontario provincial police about three weeks ago by Angus MacDonald of Beardmore. It was placed in the thickly-leaded radium vault of the General Hospital.

Another suggestion was that the vial, about three-quarters full, might contain uranium. George E. Pye, resident provincial geologist, said if it is uranium, it will be worth considerably less than a similar quantity of radium.

MacDonald said in an interview he and a member of the Dutch underground took the vial from a German laboratory shortly after the battle of Arnhem in 1944. He said the German scientists were trying to produce fissionable material from heavy water.

SENT COUNTER 'CRAZY'

MacDonald said he did not know the substance was radioactive until shortly before he took it to OPP constable Jack Webb who tested it with a geiger counter. He said the vial sent the counter "crazy."

It was expected the package would be taken to the atomic research centre at Chalk River for analysis.

"I hope nothing is going to happen to me," said MacDonald, who is prospecting in the Beardmore area, 120 miles northeast of here.

"I showed good faith by turning it over to police after I found it was radioactive."

MacDonald said the member of the underground seemed to find him more acceptable because he spoke French. MacDonald was brought up in Quebec province.

SAID ALL IN GERMANY

"I figured this stuff was valuable and I remembered him saying it was the whole supply in all of Germany and that if I didn't take one of the vials, the underground would get all of it."

"In my mind was that I might make some money out of it, but what it was I didn't know and I wasn't told."

He said the vial was in a cardboard box lined with lead-like substance and marked with the figure 1 over an oblique line and beneath it another figure 1 and the letter R.

GAVE HIM HEADACHE

He said he had not often handled the vial out of the case. "I was afraid of the stuff" after I removed the cork once and got a terrific headache.

An RCMP spokesman at Ottawa said MacDonald will receive a thorough examination for radioactive burns or bone deterioration.

MacDonald said the vial lay for years in a cabinet at his mother's home while he prospected. He took it to Beardmore in October.

2,000 Armed Police Surround Natives

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UP)—Armed opposition was expected momentarily as 2,000 armed police today pressed relentlessly ahead with mass-removal of 60,000 natives from Johannesburg's Negro slum, Sophiatown.

The unprecedented forced evacuation to the new government community of Meadowlands, 212 miles away, is a key part of the Boer government's policy of apartheid—total racial segregation.

REPORT ARMS HIDDEN

Two thousand policemen armed with machine-guns began the evacuation Thursday, two days before the announced date. They ordered 150 families to move immediately. Only 110 complied. They rest vanished in the night, led by a hooded man.

Minister of Justice C. R. Swart told parliament today the decision to speed the transfer was based on police reports that machine-guns and explosives are hidden in the native quarter.

The threatened armed opposition also was behind the government's decision to ban all public gatherings for 20 days.

Other families packed up their furniture and moved into the Sophiatown Mission directed by Father Trevor Middleton and said they did not wish to move to Meadowlands. There was no immediate official reaction to this move but police warned the English-born minister to "keep moving" when he walked among the native families.

Justice Minister Swart disclosed the "brewing trouble" in answer to questions from opposition leader J. G. N. Strauss in parliament today.

HOMES DEMOLISHED

The removal of the 100 families was carried out without incident, Swart said. The families climbed into 75 government trucks with their coal stoves, kitchen utensils and other household belongings and moved off. Some natives treated the whole thing as a holiday excursion, he said.

Government demolition crews sprayed the natives homes with cyanide and then demolished them or smashed the roofs to make them uninhabitable.

The initial move was restricted to shanty dwellers who either pay small rent or live as squatters. The movement of property owners set for later may not go off as easily. The natives will be paid for confiscated homes but cannot buy property at Meadowlands.

Canadian Who Aided First LD Call Dies

TORONTO (CP)—George P. Dunlop, who assisted Alexander Graham Bell with history's first long distance telephone call, in 1876, died here Tuesday night at 101.

Won't Be Back

Victoria's hockey fans who have been looking forward to a renewal of the feud between Victoria's Colin Kilburn and Canucks' Bill Ezlinicki (above) will be disappointed. "Wild Bill" has been sold to New York Rangers of the NHL and will join Rangers for their game in Boston Saturday night.

Unopposed Withdrawal Moves Fast

TAIPEI (UP)—Nationalist Chinese troops poured into Formosa today from the abandoned and demilitarized Tachen Islands at a clip that promised an end to the touchy, U.S.-protected operation by tomorrow or Saturday. Red China has not interfered.

One U.S. transport and three Chinese LSTs arrived at Keelung today, bringing the first troops from Tachen itself. Three more U.S. transports were due tonight.

The more dangerous redeployment of the troops to Quemoy, Matsu and Nanchi Islands may begin at the week-end.

That operation, which presumably will be carried out by the Nationalists alone, will require transports to move to within a few thousand yards of the heavily defended Red-held mainland.

Navy sources said 13,947 civilians were evacuated from the Tachens. Two refugees died aboard ship, victims of earlier Communist gunfire. Two births were reported, one each aboard the U.S. transport Bexar and an American destroyer.

AFL Council Approves Giant Merger

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The AFL's executive council gave its expected unanimous approval today to the proposed AFL-CIO merger agreement.

AFL president George Meany said he anticipated no hitch in CIO executive board ratification in two weeks, the drawing up of a constitution for the merged federation and its subsequent adoption.

West Silent on Soviet Proposal For Inter-Parliamentary Visits

LONDON (CP)—The Star says the Russian proposal for inter-parliamentary discussions is "a splendid idea."

The Liberal newspaper comments on a resolution passed in Moscow by the Supreme Soviet suggesting exchanges of parliamentary delegations, with speeches by members of one parliament in the parliaments of other countries.

"Here is the Supreme Soviet officially calling for a worldwide exchange of MPs to bring a quiet life."

"Despite the groans of those who criticized Mr. Attlee's (former Labor premier Clement Attlee) Russian journey... we think this is a splendid idea."

"The Supreme Soviet will sincerely welcome any steps by parliaments of other countries aimed at consolidating peace," says the declaration. The West must find out whether they mean it."

Other British newspapers have not commented on the Russian proposal.

WASHINGTON SILENT

In Washington, state department officials indicated it was too early to comment on the Soviet idea since nothing official on the proposal had been received there. They said they knew nothing beyond the reports carried by Moscow radio.

Members of western parliaments frequently visit the Soviet Union, but there is no evidence that they ever have been invited to address the Supreme Soviet. Nor have any Soviet lawmakers appeared on the floor of any western parliament.

Parliamentarians from western countries have visited Russia on a number of occasions.

Last August Attlee took a party of Laborites across the Soviet Union to Red China. They had a top-level reception, including two dinner meetings with Georgi Malenkov, who then was premier.

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (Reuters)—Princess Margaret took a day off from her tour of the British West Indies today to visit two childhood friends, great-grandchildren of the late Chicago millionaire Marshall Field.

The princess' broke off her tour to be with Michael and Jeremy Tree, their father, Ronald and their mother, Lady Anne Cavendish.

It was also a reunion for the royal visitor's lady-in-waiting, Lady Elizabeth Cavendish. Lady

Anne is her sister—and her brother, the Duke of Devonshire, also was in the party.

Battle Feared In South Africa

2,000 Armed Police Surround Natives in Forced Evacuation

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UP)—Armed opposition was expected momentarily as 2,000 armed police today pressed relentlessly ahead with mass-removal of 60,000 natives from Johannesburg's Negro slum, Sophiatown.

The unprecedented forced evacuation to the new government community of Meadowlands, 212 miles away, is a key part of the Boer government's policy of apartheid—total racial segregation.

$200 Million DEW Line Job Split 3 Ways

OTTAWA (CP)—Three Canadian companies will carry out a major share of developing the $200,000,000 aircraft-warning Arctic radar fence to be paid for by the United States.

The U.S. management contractor, Western Electric Co., has awarded DEW line (Distant Early Warning) contracts to The Foundation Co. of Canada, Montreal; the Northern Construction Co., Vancouver; and Spartan Air Services Ltd., Ottawa.

The Spartan company will do a three-month aerial survey of the Arctic area where the radar chain will be located. The Foundation company will handle construction of the eastern half of the line and Northern Construction the western half.

Informants said most of the instruments to go into the radar line will be produced by U.S. companies, but other Canadian companies are likely to share in the big project.

The string of Arctic radar stations is expected to be completed in about two years.

Times to Sponsor B.C. Open Match Play Golf

The Victoria Daily Times today has all but completed arrangements for a British Columbia Match Play Open golf final for the provincial championship.

Working in conjunction with the Vancouver Daily Province, The Times' proposal that the match-play golf champions of Vancouver Island and Vancouver, respectively, meet in a title series has been acclaimed on all fronts as "a shot in the arm for golf."

The Times this week assumed sponsorship of the Vancouver Island Match Play Open championships. The Province sponsors the Vancouver Match Play event. Under the proposal agreed to by both newspapers and bearing the support of the Victoria and District Golf Association, the two champions would meet in a 36-hole title match.

Ben Calk, president of the B.C. Professional Golfers' Association, praised the plan and will seek approval by the B.C. PGA at its next meeting.

Here's what leading Victoria golfers and officials think of the idea:

Leo Derman (secretary, Gorge Vale Golf Club)—"This is a great step for golf in Victoria. The previous sponsors of the Vancouver Island match play open did a fine job and this latest development will be a big shot in the arm for golf in Victoria."

Bob Morrison (eight-time city golf champion)—"I think the idea is wonderful. The inter-city aspect will create more interest for everyone. I'll certainly be in there waving a club."

Bob Fleming (PNW cham)—"Boy, what a terrific 'boom' for

Canadian Veteran Got Vial in Germany

PORT ARTHUR, Ont. (CP)—A two-ounce vial of highly-radioactive powder has set police investigating the strange story of a former army provost corporal who says it was taken from the laboratory of a group of German scientists early in 1944.

It is believed the powder might be radium, which could be worth about $10,000,000 an official said.

The vial was turned over to Ontario provincial police about three weeks ago by Angus MacDonald of Beardmore. It was placed in the thickly-leaded radium vault of the General Hospital.

Another suggestion was that the vial, about three-quarters full, might contain uranium. George E. Pye, resident provincial geologist, said if it is uranium, it will be worth considerably less than a similar quantity of radium.

MacDonald said in an interview he and a member of the Dutch underground took the vial from a German laboratory shortly after the battle of Arnhem in 1944. He said the German scientists were trying to produce fissionable material from heavy water.

SENT COUNTER 'CRAZY'

MacDonald said he did not know the substance was radioactive until shortly before he took it to O.P.F. constable Jack Webb who tested it with a geiger counter. He said the vial sent the counter "crazy."

It was expected the package would be taken to the atomic research centre at Chalk River for analysis.
